A Broadway Lincoln

That well-known Canadian actor, Raymond Massey, plays the role of Lincoln in the stage play, "Lincoln in Illinois," hailed as a classic in New York.

With the aid of a mirror, Massey begins the task of making up for his role. Grease paint, powder and other theatrical makeup soon give him the desired effect.

Most familiar to Americans is the bearded Lincoln. And here he is as Massey portrays the role. The beard grows gradually during the progress of the play.

Here is Massey's conception of how Abraham Lincoln looked when he was 25 years old. The action of the play runs for a period of 31 years, from 1830 to 1861.

'CONQUEST' OF CHINA WON'T BE RECOGNIZED

Capital Silent But Indicates 'Monroe Doctrine' in Asia Will Be Ignored.

STANDS PAT ON TREATIES

Nation Won't Relinquish Its Rights Guaranteed Under Chinese Rule.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The United States will never recognize Japan's "conquest" of China, or any claims by Nippon to special privileges on the Asiatic continent, it was learned today on high authority.

Japan's call for a "fundamental revision" of the China situation, voiced by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, today fell on deaf ears in Washington.

Ignores Proclamation.

Officially, the state department is giving no recognition to the Japanese government's proclamation of yesterday and Prince Konoye's supplementary statement of today, in which the empire of the Rising Sun demands recognition of a virtual political and economic "Monroe doctrine" for Asia.

The reason is that the United States, on Oct. 6, defined its position in regard to China in one of the strongest notes dispatched from Washington to a foreign government since World war days.

In the note, the United States accused Japan of "unwarranted" interference with American rights, of discriminatory practices, of bad faith in the face of persistent promises, and of attempting to close the "open door" in China.

Japan has not replied to the note, and the reply is being awaited before Washington's further decisions are made.

'Pat' on Treaties.

However, one phase of Washington's position was crystal clear today. The United States has no intention of relinquishing its position on claims for rights guaranteed by treaties in China, or of recognizing any territorial conquests by Japan in China.

Officials privately pointed out that the United States recognized the Chiang Kai-Shek government as having control over China.

Key Figures In Kidnap Ring

These four men, all with police records, were rounded up by FBI agents in New York in connection with a "kidnaping syndicate." They face charges of the kidnap murder of Arthur Fried, wealthy White Planes contractor, and they have allegedly admitted two other kidnapings. New York police today were digging in the cement basement of a hall to find the remains of Fried and possibly other victims. Shown above, top left to right, are John Virga, Demetrius Gula, and at the bottom Joseph Sacoda, at present in Sing Sing prison, and William Jacknis.

Dig for Bones Buried By 'Kidnap Syndicate'

Police Unearth Remains of New Yorker Who Was Held for $200,000 Ransom; 4 In Jail Confess; Secret 'Murder Room' Found.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Police dug into the cement basement of Ukrainian hall today seeking buried bones of possible victims of a "kidnap syndicate" accused by federal agents of slaying one man and collecting ransom for the release of at least two others.

Pickaxes during the night unearthed the first gruesome evidence in the macabre search—several bones believed by police to be part of the body of Arthur Fried, young White Plains business executive who was kidnaped last Dec. 4 and held for $200,000 ransom.

Two of the smaller bones appeared to be the remains of teeth.

J. Edgar Hoover, who announced the arrests, turned over to assistants of Manhattan District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey three of the four men he accused of shooting Fried to death and burning his body in the lodge hall's furnace after failing to collect the ransom.

A fourth suspect, Joseph Sacoda,

28,000 VOTE PREDICTED IN COUNTY NOV. 8

Total Will Be Slightly Under Record 1936 Balloting, Observers Agree.

KEEN INTEREST IN RACES

Registrations in City at All-Time High of 19,500 Due to Bond Drives.

At least 28,000 Mansfield and Richland county voters are expected to go to the polls next Tuesday as the state elects almost a complete slate of officials, a United States senator, congressmen and county officials.

The predicted vote in the city and county, which may reach 32,000, acocrding to George M. Neffner, statistician for Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, will be slightly under the record vote cast in the 1936 presidential election, observers agree.

2,750,000 State Vote Seen.

Neffner estimated that 2,750,000 votes will be cast in the state next Tuesday as compared with 3,044,099 two years ago.

Keen interest in the campaign for governor and congressman in the 17th district, which includes Richland county, will help to boost this year's Richland county vote to what may be a new mark for an off-year election, political experts predict.

Richland county board of election officials forecast a county vote of "from 28,000 to nearly 30,000." In Mansfield, registrations reached an all-time high of approximately 19,500 during the past summer, and bond issues, tax levy and wet and dry issues in a number of the county's rural sections are expected to stimulate interest in county districts outside Mansfield.

Cast $2,000 in 1936.

The city and county cast over 32,000 votes in 1936, giving 17,625 to Gov. Martin L. Davey and 14,837 to John W. Bricker, the Republican candidate for governor, who is the party's candidate again this year.

In the state, Gov. Davey received 1,539,993 votes and Bricker, 1,412,780 in 1936 the secretary of state's figures showed.

In his forecast, Neffner told Secretary of State Kennedy that Ohioans are becoming more "political minded." He added that "we have every reason to expect a large vote this year, with the voters' interest centered in the candidates for U. S. senate."

Heads Air School

A modern air stewardess "college" for the training of newly employed girls has been launched by United Airlines. Myrtle Frederickson, for years an active stewardess, has been appointed chief instructress in charge of the new school. Classes in all phases of aviation will be conducted with pilots, department heads and operations officials serving as instructors.

VETS MARCH ON ARMISTICE DAY

Parade, Rites at Monument to Mark 20th Anniversary Observance Here.

On the 20th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice on Nov. 11, Mansfield World war veterans will march again to the sound of drums and bugles.

Plans for the city's observance of the 20th anniversary of Armistice day have been completed by McVey post of the American Legion which will have open house throughout the day at its home.

The annual service at the Doughboy monument in Central park will be conducted at 11 a. m. by officers of the Legion and the auxiliary.

At noon a dinner will be served at the Legion home, with McVey post hosts to World war veterans and Spanish-American war veterans.

At 7:30 p. m. there will be a parade from the Legion home to Central park and over downtown streets. Robert J. Nichols, an officer of the National Guard, will be in charge of this part of the celebration.

The Richland County Red Cross will take part in the Armistice parade which marks the first day of the chapter's annual membership Roll Call.

Sunday has been designated as Armistice Sunday and services will be held at First Lutheran church. A chorus of 100 voices, under the direction of L. A. Cook, will be a feature of the service and Rev. Grover Swoyer, American Legion chaplain, will speak on "For God and Country."

LINDYS GIVING UP CITIZENSHIP?

London Paper Says Flier Will Get Government Post.

LONDON—(U.P.)—The West End and Soho weekly will say tomorrow that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is about to take out British citizenship for himself and family and accept a high civil aviation post in England.

Well-informed sources in London and in Berlin, which Lindbergh visited recently, derided the story. British sources pointed out that naturalization is not possible at this time because Lindbergh has not fulfilled the residential requirements required by British law.

CIO CALLS OFF PICKETING AT MIDDLETOWN

1,100 Workers Report for Duty While 500 Guardsmen Stand Idly By.

DAVEY LASHES LEWIS

Says Strike's End Admission by CIO Head That Union Ranking Was Thin.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(INS)—National guard troops will evacuate Middletown this afternoon, Adjt. Gen. Emil F. Marx announced.

(By Associated Press)

MIDDLETOWN — Under the armed protection of troops ordered here by Gov. Martin L. Davey, operations were resumed today at the P. Lorillard company tobacco plant, closed since Oct. 3 by a Committee for Industrial Organization-sponsored strike.

Workers streamed into the block-long structure at 8 a. m. without interference as pickets had been withdrawn when the Pioneer Tobacco Workers Union capitulated and ended its strike at midnight.

E. F. Harpring, plant manager, said the entire force of 1,100 workers reported. About 850 were assigned to the day shift and the remainder ordered to return at 4 p. m. for a night shift.

500 Troops on Duty.

Discontinuance of the strike left the national guardsmen and special squads of city and county police with little to do. Five hundred guardsmen were ordered here by Davey after city officials warned that reopening of the plant while the strike was in progress might result in rioting and bloodshed.

Governor Davey ordered out the troops after condemning what he described as a "brutal, lawless and tyrannical invasion of this state by the CIO high command."

The majority of guardsmen were stationed about a block from the plant, but troopers, rifles slung across their shoulders, paced across the street from the rambling structure. City and county police stood guard at the gates.

An atmosphere of friendliness pervaded the restaurants in the vicinity of the plant, where strikers, non-strikers, police and guardsmen gathered before the

KELLEY ILL

City Auditor Leaves Office, Will Rest for Two Weeks.

Kelley said he probably would rest at his home, 379 Springmill, although he added he might go away later.

During his absence, Mrs. Margaret Borchard, who was formerly employed in the county auditor's office, will assist Mrs. Ruth Durig, deputy city auditor, in handling the auditor's office.

Bricker Accused Of 'Run-Out' on Charge

Sawyer Campaigns In Cleveland, Opponent and Taft Ask Washington to Investigate 'Coercion' of WPA Workers.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Dr. Carl Watson, state WPA director, today denied charges by Robert A. Taft and John W. Bricker, Republican senatorial and gubernatorial nominees, that attempts had been made to "coerce" WPA workers into voting for their Democratic opponents and asked Taft and Bricker "to furnish evidence of this alleged activity."

Charles Sawyer, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, today had charged the actions of John Bricker, his Republican opponent, were "eloquent proof" of the deal of which he has accused Bricker, while the latter countered by saying WPA workers were being "coerced" into supporting his Democratic rival.

Sawyer, speaking at a series of rallies in Cleveland, said Bricker had staged a "run-out" as his only reply to the charge of a deal between himself and Gov. Martin L. Davey for a 70-30 division of patronage.

"A deal has been made," Sawyer asserted, "and what does my opponent do about it. First he is silent, then he denies it. Then he says if one has been made he will not go through with it.

"First he runs out on the people of Ohio. Then he runs out on the Republicans. Now he runs out on his boss, Ed Schorr (state Republican chairman)."

Bricker meanwhile teamed with Robert A. Taft, G. O. P. senatorial candidate, in calling on the senate campaign expenditures committee to investigate the Ohio campaign.

They charged that WPA workers were being "coerced" into voting for Sawyer and Senator Robert J. Bulkley, who is seeking

COLLECTION SET

Personal Tax Payments to Get Under Way Next Week.

Collection of personal taxes for the last half of the year in Richland county probably will begin about the middle of next week, County Treasurer John H. Kolb said today. The collection period will extend to Dec. 10.

The state tax commission today authorized extension of the opening payment period from Oct. 20 to Nov. 10 at the request of county officials.

Kolb said the auditor's office had been unable to get the tax books to his office in time for the opening of the collection on the regular October schedule. Books were expected to be ready for the treasurer by Saturday or Monday.

RESUME TALKS

Mine Workers, Coal Operators Continue Wage Talks.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United Mine Workers, opposed to any reduction in the earnings of anthracite workers, resumed discussions with operator representatives today to find a formula for adapting the wage-hour law to the anthracite wage agreement.

The law, providing for time and one-half compensation for work in excess of 44 hours a week, affects a relatively small number of employes.

MAPS ADDRESS

Roosevelt Expected to Say 'Good Word' for Bulkley.

HYDE PARK, N. Y. — (U.P.) — President Roosevelt began work today on the nation-wide address he will deliver tomorrow calling for the election on Tuesday of "forward looking" Democrats.

While Mr. Roosevelt's speech is primarily for the purpose of aiding his party's ticket in New York state, White House attaches said it would be of sufficient breadth to interest the entire country. Consequently, it will be broadcast on the networks.

Observers believed that the president, in his Friday evening broadcast, would have a good word for Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, and Senator Robert Bulkley of Ohio, both of whom are up for re-election and faced with strong opposition.

It's Pull Not Push For Cabooses Now, U. S. Court Rules

From now on railroad engines in Ohio may pull—but they dare not push. And as a result cabooses will be where cabooses should be—back of the engine instead of in front.

Three judges of the United States appellate court have upheld an order of the public utilities commission against the Pennsylvania railroad, and have agreed that the practice of using engines to push a train constitutes a hazard for the men who are forced to ride in the caboose.

The commission's order followed an accident at nearby Lakeville in Holmes county on April 27, 1935, when three men, E. D. Beecher, J. D. Bullan and James Easley, were injured when they were riding in the caboose of a freight train which telescoped, and the caboose was pushed into the lake before the engineer knew that there was trouble ahead.

The ruling, which was signed by Judges Florence Allen, Robert Nevin and Mell Underwood, will cost thousands of dollars in switching time in the principal yards of Ohio, railroaders said.

KILLS OFFICERS

Vice Den Proprietor Slain After Murdering Policemen.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—(INS)—A police raid on a vice den resulted today in the fatal shooting of its alleged proprietor after his gun killed two patrolmen.

As Patrolman Carl Rolf and Edward Long approached a darkened room they were shot down, authorities stated, by Alex Greski who then was killed by a third officer.

THE LOCAL SCENE

RICHLAND county Democrats were ready for a whirlwind finish of their campaign today with a half dozen rallies scheduled to bring speakers of national prominence into the district right up to the eve of Tuesday's election.

Two ward meetings will be held in Mansfield tonight while Congressman William A. Ashbrook will address a rally at the Shelby high school at 7:30 p. m. to climax the Shelby drive.

Tomorrow night William Pickrel, former lieutenant governor will headline a district rally at Democratic headquarters on West Fourth street. Charles West, former congressman from this district and President Roosevelt's erstwhile "contact man" on Capitol Hill addresses an Italian rally Sunday afternoon at the party headquarters here.

"Don't let anybody tell you that a system of government that can't afford a $100 a month pen-

PRAISING women for the active part they are taking in the present campaign, Mrs. Catherine Neff Cox of Canton, 16th district Republican state central committeewoman, asserted yesterday at a Republican women's rally here that "We women are ready to stand shoulder to shoulder with our menfolks to preserve our democracy."

Mrs. Cox, young mother of six children, spoke before 250 Republican women campaign workers yesterday afternoon following a dinner at party headquarters.

"Women take a hand in politics when it threatens their homes, their husbands and their children," she said, "and this time the New Deal's attempted regimentation of youth is enough in itself to bring mothers into the campaign.

"In Ohio, women ought to win for the Republican ticket on the issue of Communist support of the Democratic candidates," she added.

Critical of the WPA and CCC camps, Mrs. Cox said those agencies are "New Deal" excuses for its failure to keep its promises to the nation's youth and unemployed.

Two Girls Begin $50,000 'Spending Spree,' But They're Not Bit Happy

Two Mansfield girls were doing today what would delight the heart of almost anyone—spending $50,000.

Yes—$50,000—and ordinarily, with a pocket full of cash like that you would think they would be happy. But they aren't. It isn't their money and they are not going on one of those traditional feminine spending sprees.

Ruth Durig, deputy city auditor and Mrs. Margaret Borchard, who has been employed temporarily to assist in the spending program, are engaged in preparing for the payment of $50,000 in relief bills.

This outpouring of cash which will result in the issuance of upwards of 1,000 checks, is the largest relief payment ever to be made by the city at one time.

"It's a swell feeling to spend this amount," the deputy auditor said as she poured over the check book and shook a cramp out of her hand, "because there will be the satisfaction that when its finished, we won't have to bother with it again for a while."

The payment represents amounts ranging from 40 cents to $2,000 owed Mansfield merchants for food supplied to indigent families on relief rolls over the past five months.

Because of the amount of work involved in compiling the accounts and writing the checks, Mrs. Durig said the checks will not be ready for distribution before Nov. 20.

When distributed, however, they will represent the entire amount of the city's overdue relief bills and will mark the first time that the city has been out of debt for relief since it took over the administration work last March.

INDIA, HITLER'S REAL GOAL SAYS KNICKERBOCKER

Seeks to Monopolize Trade of England, France, and U. S. In Economic Move.

(Editor's Note: India, with all its riches, is the real goal of Germany, in its drive through southeastern Europe, writes H. R. Knickerbocker in the fourth article of his series on "Europe After Munich.")

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK—Hitler has taken another leaf from Napoleon's book. With alterations of his own, he has started another "continental system" to monopolize the trade of the despised democracies, England, France, and the United States.

With a gun in one hand, and an order book in the other, Nazi Germany is presenting the countries of central Europe, the Balkans, and the near east, with the alternative "sign or be shot."

The British navy was the big loser in the bloodless battle of Czechoslovakia. Its principal function in Europe was in the event of war to blockade Germany. By seizing Czechoslovakia Hitler created almost overnight his Mittel Europa, the dream of imperialist Germans for generations.

Gets All She Needs.

Mittel Europa, meaning German control from the Baltic to the Black sea and beyond, gives Hitler nearly every commodity Germany needs and previously had to produce from overseas. Blockade today would be so small a hindrance to Germany that with regard to material supplies, she could probably carry on a war considerably longer than in the last struggle when she held out against the entire world for four years but was finally starved out.

All this was presented to Germany at Munich by the British and the French. It was almost as though Chamberlain had ceremoniously turned over the British navy to Hitler and declared: "Now that you have this proof of our peaceful intentions, and furthermore now that we have deprived ourselves of the possibility of blockading or starving the reich, we hereby invite you to make a pact of peace forever."

For it has already become sharply evident that the British are the chosen prey, the principal victims of the Nazi military-commercial drive to conquer the broad and opulent belt from Hamburg to Constantinople, and thence on to Bagdad, and Kabul. Afganistan itself is only the temporary terminus of the drive. India, with all its riches, is the real goal.

Already the joke is current that Japanese and German military representatives met the other night to congratulate each other on Munich and on Canton. But they broke up in angry dispute over the question whether the German-Japanese frontier should be at Bombay or at Singapore.

The German compulsory-trade drive began with bewildering and typically Nazi swiftness. Almost literally at the moment when Chamberlain entered his airplane to fly to Berchtesgaden and thus tipped off the Germans that victory was in their hands, Herr Funk, the reich minister of economics, was on his way to collect the first profits, and lay the ground for the most grandiose campaign of imperialistic expansion since the British set out to found their empire.

His plan was simple. To each of the small countries within the new military purview of the reich, he would suggest a glance at what happened to Czechoslovakia. They are all studying it with terrified intensity anyway. Politely he would intimate that the same thing might happen here. But, consolingly, it need not happen if certain conditions are met.

Price of 'Protection.'

Substantially the conditions are: "You agree from now on to buy only from Germany everything we can supply, and to deliver only to Germany everything we want of your production. This will be done on a basis of barter, with a clearing system to balance the books.

"We need your grain, ores, oil and timber. You need our manufactured goods. You may not know it, but you are going to need more and more of them because we are going to show you the way to build roads, put up factories, dig mines, all with German materials.

Must Be 'Exclusive.'

"Remember, though, the rule is that you trade exclusively with Germany. And privately, also, you are to pay particular attention to British, French and American goods, and you are to avoid them utterly on pain of the severest displeasure of the reich."

His first visit was to Belgrade where he scored a resounding success with the government of Soyadinovich, already favorably disposed, and after Munich enthusiastically ready to cooperate. A Jugoslav-German commission was immediately formed to draw up a new trade treaty which will raise Germany's share in Jugoslav imports to well over 50 per cent of the total, with the prospect of progressive increase towards full monopoly of everything Germany can supply.

Jugoslavia is reputedly the richest country in Europe in minerals, with magnesite, bauxite (for aluminum), copper, iron, chrome, lead and zinc, all needed by Germany. Her wheat, corn, timber and copper have formed the bulk of German purchases until now.

But Germany is chiefly interested in making Jugoslavia buy German goods. In the wake of Herr Funk are travelling large contingents of German salesmen, with catalogs and samples of all the countless commodities which Germany's industries produce but hitherto have been unable to sell because of monetary restrictions.

Ironically, it is Italy which will suffer most by the German-Jugoslav compact, for much of the trade Germany is now demanding will be taken from the other partner in the axis. At Herr Funk's next stop, in Angora, England was the sufferer.

Turkey, the British thought, became more than ever a secure support for the empire, after she accepted a $75,000,000 loan from London, just a few months ago. Now suddenly, perfidiously, the Turks took from Herr Funk a German trade credit of $62,500,000 and on the pattern of Jugoslavia, arranged a trade agreement whereby Turkey will take German machinery and manufactured goods in exchange for Turkish tobacco, timber, raisins and cotton.

Turkey is vital to British control of the land and air route to India. Now it appears that the Germans have obtained not only a foothold in Angora but have won entry to Irak, whence the way through Iran is open to Afganistan. Already Herr Funk's emissaries and salesmen are on their way to Bagdad, Teheran and Kabul, the back door to India.

Farm Agent Urges Use of Poisoned Bait In Rat War

In response to requests from the northern part of the county, where rats are reported unusually destructive this fall, County Agent George B. Ganyard today mapped a program to eradicate the pests.

He urged the use of poisoned bait, traps, and the destruction of dens as the best means of ridding farms of rats.

"Get rid of rubbish piles, open feed bins, burrows under buildings and any condition which makes it possible for the rat to hide," the county agent advised.

"Rats are smart and often avoid traps, but an ounce of powdered red squill (poison) mixed with a pound of fresh meat or fish and put in places where rats are accustomed to feed will usually reduce the rat population in a hurry," he added.

Care should be taken not to touch the bait with the hands, and it should be distributed in sufficient quantities to do the work in one night, Ganyard pointed out.

Joe Louis to Defend Heavyweight Title Against Lewis

Madison Loses Six Players
Shelby Seeks Another Game
Joe Miller 'Most Valuable'

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

SHELBY HIGH SCHOOL will book a post-season football game this fall if a suitable opponent can be obtained, this department learned today. Whether any negotiations are under way as yet could not be ascertained. . . . According to John Gray, The News-Journal's Shelby correspondent, the attempt of Bordertown officials to have the Whippets' game with Galion changed from night to a Friday or Saturday afternoon affair has found deaf ears in Galion. Galion officials contend that a night game will draw a larger crowd. . . . John Longley, Ashland high coach, has a versatile performer in Red Chorpening. He played at a halfback last fall, and was a tackle in spring drills this season. After starting the season at an end, he was shifted to guard, the spot he will hold down Saturday afternoon when the Tygers go to Ashland. . . . Perhaps the most underrated football player in the district is Joe Miller, Madison captain and fullback. The headlines have been going to his teammates, but Joe has made most of their romps possible. He'd be the leading candidate for the "most valuable player" award if one were presented at Madison.

Schmidt

Madison only loses six players by graduation in June, but take a look at who they are: Joe Miller, Gene Harmon, Bill Wilkins, Bob Wilkins, Mel Harner and George Kanz. . . . The Ohio State-Purdue football relationship in the point of scores is among the most unique in the game. In six meetings, the Bucks have come out victorious on every occasion, while the luckless Boilermakers have yet to score against Ohio State. . . . In Big Ten circles, Ohio State's early failures are attributed to coaching faults. Francis Schmidt worked his squad so hard during the three weeks of preseason practice it was stale for the opening game and only showed signs of recuperation against Chicago and New York U.

REVEALS HISTORY: Records included in the new Club bowling league schedule book compiled by Secretary Harold C. Miller reveal that the organization was formed in 1922 . . . that Harry Finefrock was the first secretary . . . that Black, Banks, Charles, Conklin, Finefrock, Schwein, Sword and Wentz are original members still bowling . . . that the highest individual score ever bowled in the league was a 300 by Art Hilborn, highest three-game score of 749 by Bill Donnallan, highest team single game of 1106 by American Legion, which also holds the three-game record of 3138.

Kallmerten-Baer Coals to Meet Avondale Theaters at League Park Sunday.

NEXT Sunday may be the day the Kallmerten and Baer Coals snap out of their six-game losing streak, but the odds are against such an occurance. The officials of the club are not weakening the opposition.

The K-B team tackles another tough opponent at League park Sunday when they engage the Avondale Theaters of Columbus.

The Avondale team is one of that city's topnotch heavyweight elevens. It's record is not available, but Business Manager Johnny Villella has learned that the Avondales stack up with any foe the Mansfield eleven has faced this season.

Former Columbus high school players stud the lineup of the Avondale Theaters, who won their first four games, according to the only record Villella has available.

The team is coached by Boots Myers, who starred some years ago on the gridiron at the University of Wilmington.

While the Columbus team promises plenty of competition, Coach Gip Miller figures the Coals cannot lose all of their games. All of the defeats this season were lost by a margin of six points. Miller believes the Coals are due for a break.

Gabby's Home Run Bat Exhibited in Museum.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Chicago Historical society hasn't got that lamp Mrs. O'Leary's cow is reputed to have kicked over to start the Chicago fire, but today it did have the bat with which Gabby Hartnett banged out a home run in the dusk of Sept. 28 to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates and spark Chicago's Cubs to the National league pennant.

The bat, along with the glove, mask, chest protector and shinguards the Cub manager used that day, will be placed on permanent exhibit in the society's museum. They were donated to the museum by Hartnett at the society's request.

DEATH CLAIMS FORMER OWNER OF CHICAGO CUBS

CHICAGO — (INS) — Back to his boyhood home for burial after a notable career in business and sport went the body today of Charles H. Weghman. "Lucky Charlie" who built an $8,000,000 fortune from the idea that people wanted to eat fast and cheap and who once owned the Chicago Cubs, died here yesterday at the age of 64.

He suffered a stroke on Tuesday as he and his wife were returning from a vacation in Hot Springs, Ark., to their home in New York. His body was to be taken today to Richmond, Ind., where the funeral will be held on Friday.

'HEAVENLY' GATES NAME STILL ON ROSTER, BUT—?

HANOVER, N. H. — (AP) — The name of Harrington Kenneth ("Heavenly") Gates, 24-year-old Saugus, Mass., football star who sought shelter from the "Godlessness" of the gridiron in the weather-beaten haven of the Legion of God at Amherst, today remained on the rolls of the Dartmouth senior class.

College authorities indicated, however, it would be removed if he failed to return within a few days.

OHIO NORTHERN MOVES TO SEVER B. G. RELATIONS

ADA — (AP) — President Robert Williams of Ohio Northern university moved today to sever athletic relations with Bowling Green university for five years as result of defacement of school buildings and decorations here Oct. 21 which he said was caused by Bowling Green students. He said he would seek to cancel schedule engagements.

Opening Mid-State League Game Expected to Draw Record Crowd to Suburban Field.

Coach Al Fendrick's minions of the gridiron meet Loudonville's Red Birds in their opening Mid-State league game of the season under the bulbs at S p. m Friday.

It will be Madison's Homecoming day game, and the grads are expected to return in throngs to see what Fendrick has developed in the way of a football team this fall.

They should find to their delight that the Rams are again setting a furious pace on the gridiron. So far this season, the Rams have won six out of seven games. The lone defeat was suffered in a game with a Class A foe.

Fendrick's men meet one of the toughest Class B opponents on their schedule Friday. The Red Birds have lost only two games, and they have been improving steadily.

Madison, which will be outweighed six pounds to a man, will present more speed, but the visitors are believed to pack more defensive strength, with 185-pound Phil Krause a power in the Loudonville line.

Bulldogs, Freddies Collide Today.

TODAY'S advanced high school grid struggles were headed by a tussle between Butler and Fredericktown at Butler. The game featured the Homecoming day activities at the school.

In the other games, Bellville performed at Danville and Mt. Gilead entertained Ashley in non-league affairs. New London plays at Wellington Friday afternoon.

Announcement was made today that Mt. Vernon will play at Bucyrus tonight instead of Friday as originally scheduled. Shelby performs at Crestline and Galion at Marion in Friday night tilts.

In the last game played between Shelby and Crestline in 1929, the Whippets won, 40 to 6.

Plays 60 Minutes in 26 Consecutive Grid Tilts.

DECATUR, Ill. —(AP)— Make way for a new football Iron Man — "Durable" Dixon. The durable one, also known as George Cliff Dixon, is a lineman at Little James Millikin university who has played 60 minutes of 26 consecutive games.

It is an all-time record for the "Big Blue," an Illinois college conference member. Dixon, a six-foot, 195 pound senior end, tackle and guard (he has played them all) still has three games to go. He started his streak as a freshman.

RETURN MATCH OUT

BALTIMORE — (INS)—Alfred G. Vanderbilt today gave up hope of bringing together War Admiral and Seabiscuit in a return match. War Admiral is engaged to run in the Narragansett Special on Nov. 12 and his owner, Samuel D. Riddle, refuses to break the engagement.

Cagers Open In December

Two Berths Remain Open in City Class A League.

The City Class A basketball league will open its 1938-39 season the first week in December, it was decided at a meeting of officials and team managers at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

With three teams already in the fold, President Vern Jones announced that only two berths remain open. Clubs represented were the defending champions, Yuncker Sports, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and Herrick's Hi-Speeds.

Any team manager or player desiring to join the league ranks are requested to contact Jones.

It was voted last night that all league games will start promptly at 7:30 p. m. instead of 7 p. m., as in previous years. Another meeting will be held at the Y at 7 p. m. next Wednesday.

'Most Valuable' Player Disappointed Over Bag.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)—Maybe it's modesty, but Jimmy Foxx registers more interest in hunting than in being the only man ever to be named three times as "most valuable" American league player.

He left his suburban Elkins Park home at dawn yesterday, shot a few rabbits and pheasants, and, returning for a late dinner, received news that the baseball writers of America had again placed him tops. His disappointment over his bag—three pheasants and "four or five" rabbits—marred whatever elation he may have felt over getting 305 of 336 possible points in the vote.

TWO OHIO HOUNDS RULE AS CHAMPION HUNTERS

JACKSON — (U.P.) — Two Ohio hounds ruled as champion hunters today as a result of their victories in the 19th annual Ohio State Fox Hunters association field trials.

After the third and final running of the derby race, Black Stone, owned by Ben Dial of Wellston, association president, held first honors. Coshocton Dan, owned by Jacob Francis of Manchester, was second.

MAUER GETS GULLION'S POST AT TENNESSEE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—John Mauer of Miami university's coaching staff at Oxford, O., will become basketball and baseball coach of the University of Tennessee Monday, succeeding Blair Gullion who resigned to become coach at Cornell university. Mauer has coached basketball and baseball and assisted in football at Miami since 1930.

Tygers Prep For Ashland

Hope to Snap Three-Game Losing Streak Saturday.

Anxious to snap their three-game losing streak, the Mansfield high gridsters are working hard for the engagement as they realize that their job is no easy one Saturday.

Early this season, Ashland would have been accorded little chance with the Tygers, but things have changed since then, and Mansfield can actually fear John Longley's men these days.

Ashland has been playing the same percentage of ball as Mansfield, but has shown consistent improvement, while the Tygers have been dropping deeper and deeper into their slump.

Although dissatisfied with the way the Tygers have been performing, Coach Russ Murphy does not plan any radical lineup changes. He has tried virtually every combination available at one time or another in practice and games, but the results have been the same.

Murphy believes the return of Ike Smith from the ineligibilty list will bolster the Mansfield attack for Saturday's setto. Smith did not appear in the Tygers' defeat by Akron Kenmore.

DERBY 'PREVIEW' RACE TO BE DISCONTINUED

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (AP) — The Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, looked upon by horsemen as a "preview" of Kentucky Derby candidates, will be discontinued as a feature of the fall race meeting at Churchill Downs here after the 19th running Saturday.

Col. Daniel E. O'Sullivan, an official at the Downs, made no comment in disclosing the event was to be dropped, but track observers said the race had failed to attract topflight two-year-olds in recent years because of the conflict with richer eastern stakes.

DISOWNED TEAM PREPS FOR 'ELEVEN OLD MEN'

RENO, Nev.—(U.P.)—The University of Nevada's football team, without a schedule, a coach, or equipment practiced today for a game with "Eleven Old Men," a Reno independent team composed of former college players.

The board of regents earlier this week cancelled all of the team's remaining varsity games, after the team had submitted a petition asking Head Coach Doug Dashiell, Line Coach Duane Keller, and Athletic Director J. E. Martie to resign.

FIGURES SHOW HORSES DON'T PAY DIVIDENDS

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— If you think you can win betting on the horses, look at the figures offered by Walter E. O'Hara, Providence, R. I., former president of the Narragansett Racing association. Total bets for two years: $4,184,197. Total returned, $3,811,683. Total loss: $343,114. O'Hara claims that the government erred in not allowing his losses as income tax deductions.

MRS. ROOSEVELT HONORED

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt established a precedent today by accepting the honorary chairmanship of the 1940 Olympic women's track and field team. She is the first wife of a president to fill an Olympic office.

Battle Billed Jan. 27

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK—(AP)—On top of every thing else that has happened to the boxing business recently, Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis agreed today to meet John Henry Lewis, the light heavyweight king who has been hankering for faster company a long time.

When Mike Jacobs called the two together this morning to sign papers for a bout at Madison Square Garden Jan. 27, he set up the first all-colored heavyweight championship contest since Jack Johnson met Battling Jim Johnson in Paris 25 years ago.

The match left all hands a little astonished because it had been sidestepped so long that it was considered about as probable as an invasion from Mars. Lewis had to be summoned hastily from Pittsburgh to scribble his John Henry on the contract his manager, Gus Greenlee, had negotiated.

Beat Gainer Recently.

An active campaigner, Lewis made one of his fairly frequent title defenses just last week against Al Gainer, also colored, at New Haven, Conn. But the bout drew only 4,000 customers and preserved the former Phoenix, Ariz., piano player's record of never having made any important money out of the title he took from Bob Olin in St. Louis in 1935.

Joe Louis, as phlegmatic as ever about the whole matter, was already in town to see the postponed Henry Armstrong-Ceferino Garcia title go. It will be his first fight since he bombed Max Schmeling into a hospital in one round last June and the fifth defense of his championship since he lifted the crown from Jim Braddock in 1937.

McCOMB—(AP)—McComb high school's football schedule was placed in the hands of its reserve players late today following suspension of the entire first team for "lack of spirit and cooperation" after losing to Vanlue, 72 to 0. Coach Fred Daniel said that five seniors and seven juniors would play no more this season.

Harry's Sorry Now That Mike Bylene Got Away

By FRANCIS J. POWERS

CHICAGO — (INS) —.Although it has been all of the four student generations since Harry Stuhldreher left the fair city of Massillon, O., to join the Four Horsemen and become Notre Dame's greatest quarterback, he still is the idol of the boys of his home town.

Among the Massillon kids who worshipped Stuhldreher over the vista of years, was Mike Bylene and the University of Wisconsin was his choice after graduating from high school, two summers ago. But Stuhldreher, according to the story, judged Bylene's 150 odd pounds to be too scant for any practical value in Big Ten competition.

So Michael, still scorning Ohio State down the road 100 miles, made Purdue his second choice and as a sophomore his running and passing have been of tremendous value to Mal Elward and the Boilermakers. When Purdue defeated Wisconsin a couple of weeks ago, it was Bylene who sprinted 72 yards in the fourth period to put the game in storage.

After the game, Stuhldreher went to the Purdue quarters to congratulate Mal Elward and Bylene, the kid from his home town. Mike accepted the praise of the Badger coach and then said:

"Mr. Stuhldreher I came to Purdue with the determination to win three games. And you can guess what the other two are."

Bylene will have a new objective this week for when the Boilermakers meet Ohio State in Columbus, he will be meeting boys against whom he competed in high school and the new rivalry will add something to the game. Bylene now has grown to 165 pounds and should he have a day in the Ohio stadium, Francis A. Schmidt will want to know how the Buckeye alumni missed count on Michael.

Book Another Akron Eleven

THE Adams Bantams will meet the South Akron Merchants at the Fairground at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, Business Manager Al Hamilton announced today.

This will be the third Akron team the Mansfield eleven has faced this year. The Adamsmen lost to the DeLuce Bismarcks, 25 to 0, in their opener, and bowed to the Summit County Children's Home, 12 to 6, Sunday.

Westinghouse League Led By Vogel's 652

Grable, Hanrahan and Geiger Also Turn Out 600 Totals In Matches Bowled In Plant Loop.

FRITZ VOGEL, who is rapidly developing into a topnotch pin pounder, reached his high for the new season at the Meder alleys last night when he poled out a fancy 652 total to lead the scoring in the Westinghouse league.

Bowling with the Shipping No. 1 team, Vogel fashioned games of 225, 215 and 212 to lead his teammates to a 2620 total. Pittinger contributed a 577 to the total.

Team scoring honors were annexed by the Refrigeration Assembly club, which built up to the 2647 figures. Loegel's 574 was high.

Grable of the Refrigeration Machine club whacked the wood for three 200 games and a 634 total, Hanrahan of the Order Service whipped up a 243 and a 628 and Geiger of the Appliance Finishing came through with a 603.

Buckeyes Threaten Attendance Record

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Whatver the outcome of their remaining three crucial games, the 1938 Ohio State gridders today seemed almost certain to surpass the home attendance record of the 1937 team which lost only one game on home sod.

With an attendance of at least 55,000 predicted for the Purdue contest Saturday, the total 1938 attendance will approach the 250,000 mark for the first four games. Last year, the first four tilts at home drew 232,511 fans.

The apparent margin of 20,000 in favor of this year will almost as certainly be shoved up after the closing game with Michigan Nov. 19 in Ohio stadium. The fifth game last year against Illinois drew only 41,921 while the traditional Michigan contest should draw in excess of 55,000, even if both the Bucks and Wolverines should drop their two interim games, a highly unlikely event.

Saturday will be Dad's day and several thousand fathers will be in the stands as guests of their sons and daughters attending the university.

The Bucks approached the game with more confidence than any previous tilt this fall although their manpower will be handicapped by the almost certain loss of Vic Marino, chunky Youngstown varsity guard. Marino has been in the hospital the first half of the week to get treatment for an outbreak of boils and probably will not be fit for the Purdue game.

PREPARE NOW for WINTER DRIVING

Mansfield Cushion Balloons give super safety and service for today's high speed cars.

These Crisp, Frosty Mornings Mean Cold Weather Is Near!

Winter motoring is more enjoyable and safer if you take the precaution to have your car checked carefully, by expert workmen, before cold weather sets in. Now is the time—before bad luck catches you. Transmission and differential compounds should be changed—also crankcase oil. Your tires and battery should be checked. Spark plugs should be cleaned—replaced if necessary. Here at Mansfield's newest and most modern service station, you can get this all done at one stop, and at minimum cost. Don't put it off.

MANSFIELD TIRES

Go into the winter months with safe, ground-gripping Mansfield Tires, made here by your friends and neighbors. Worn tires are not safe on rainy, snowy roads. One skidding accident can cost you more than many sets of new tires. You can't get better tires than Mansfields, and at our prices you can afford them. Liberal allowances for your old tires. We will gladly open a charge account, or you can pay on the budget plan if you wish.

THERE is more to come on the comedy that goes on endlessly at 20th Century-Fox in the miscasting of Tyrone Power. Starting with "In Old Chicago," continuing in "Suez" and reaching ludicrous heights in assigning him to the role of Jesse James, the studio is now considering him for the role of Abraham Lincoln.

* * *

Sons of the Legion.

Strictly a boys picture is "Sons of the Legion", but with enough romance and human interest to appeal to adults. With the junior American Legion group and its ideals for a background, the story revolves around three children whose parent refuses to permit them to have anything to do with the Sons of the Legion, although he himself is a World war veteran. The story behind his refusal makes for action and suspense. The picture will be shown at the Madison, Friday and Saturday.

* * *

Love and a Career.

"Young Doctor Kildare" is the story of a young medical student who sacrifices love and a place of security with his country doctor father to achieve something great for humanity. His independent thinking checks his career, but he goes on to fulfill his destiny and in the end finds that love and a career are not incompatible. Lew Ayers as Dr. Kildaire, Lionel Barrymore as the old physician and Lynne Carver as the girl, have the major roles. Opens at Ohio Thursday.

* * *

Ritz Opens Tonight.

Robert Louis Stevenson's story of the Scottish patriot who opposed a union between his country and England comes to the Ritz screen tonight, when that theater opens its doors at 6 p. m. after having been closed for a number of weeks for rebuilding. Warner Baxter is seen in the role of Alan Breck and Freddie Bartholomew as his companion. Arleen Whalen introduces a romance which wasn't in the novel. A second feature will be "Judge Hardy's Children" with Mickey Rooney.

* * *

Lucas In Problem Play.

Paul Lucas, who plays infrequently in pictures now, has a leading role in "Dangerous Secrets", problem play involving a woman, the man she married and the man she loved. A fourth woman, a housekeeper, makes it a foursome of tangled lives. The picture opens at the Majestic, Friday for a two-day run, on the same bill with "Under Western Stars", which has Roy Rogers and Smiley Burnette. Hugh Williams and Linden Travers are in the Paul Lucas film.

Bedtime Stories.

In case you don't recall the story of "Dracula", which is one of two "horror" films on the Park program for the last half of the week, it revolves around a man who has been dead for 500 years and who returns at night as a vampire to kill his victims. Bela Lugosi plays Count Dracula. "Frankenstein" is the story of the giant figure that was built and brought to life, only to destroy his scientific creator. John Boles and Mae Clark supports Boris Karloff

Book of the Week

"WISDOM'S GATE," by Margaret Ayer Barnes; (Houghton Mifflin: $2.50).

* * *

FOR a long time some of us have been fighting a losing battle with those English authoresses who talk too much. It is a disease which afflicts the English female writer more often than any other, apparently, except Margaret Ayer Barnes. Mrs. Barnes, who with her sister Janet Ayer Fairbank, has managed to make Chicago seem even more amusing than it really is, is as talky as any foreigner we've ever read.

Just the same, all arguments fall before her. It is a good tale, astutely directed. Mrs. Barnes may give 20 pages to one small and relatively unimportant scene, but while you read it you will not know the scene is unimportant. Some of her effects are extraordinarily subtle and she understands the value of a sudden change of pace and has a sense of timing as good as Helen Hayes.' Finally, her characters are analyzed so thoroughly that you almost would ask one of them for a match.

The people in Mrs Barnes' new novel are in the main those of "Years of Grace," with which she won the Pulitzer prize in 1931. She has brought them forward a generation, and Cicily, the daughter of Jane, is the chief character. Cicily who divorced Jack and married Albert Lancaster, and went to China to live the diplomatic life, dringing cocktails for their country with charm.

The fact that Albert really loves Cicily and she loves him—although Albert can no more resist a charming woman than ice cream can stand up in the sun. He has an affair in China, and when the two of them return to Lakewood, near Chicago, because they are broke there are two or three more affairs.

Cicily finds herself facing a decision that for a while must, she feels, break her heart. Albert will not change, she knows. She will not be happy without him, and paradoxically he needs and wants her. Shall she accept the situation and continue with Albert, knowing he will always return to her? Or shall she divorce him?

Mrs. Barnes' solution is logical, and intelligent. But it is after all only a small part of a novel which, for all its prolixity, is as apt a study of a large group of characters as one will find in a long day's journey. The novel should be read, but not in a hurry.

CABIN LOST IN FOREST
SEATTLE, Wash.—(UP)—Six University of Washington forestry students chanced upon a small cedar cabin in the wild Olympic National forest while fighting a forest fire and entered it to rest. Glancing at newspaers on a table, they found them to be dated December, 1906. They concluded the owner left the cabin 32 years ago and never returned.

SELECT ISSUES ON UPSIDE IN SLOW SESSION

Chrysler Stocks Encouraged Dividend Payment, Prospects for Final Quarter.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selected stocks were given a moderate lift in today's stock market but numerous issues moped in an exceptionally narrow range.

Dealings were about as slow as in yesterday's session where the turnover was the smallest since Sept. 27. A few steels, motors, rails and aircrafts managed to show gains of fractions near the second hour, but most were under opening levels.

Chrysler was fairly lively on the upside in response to the better than expected dividend declared after Wednesday's close and prospects of a good final quarter for this company.

Edging forward were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, N. Y. Central, U. S. Rubber Common and Preferred, International Harvester, North American, Sears Roebuck and American Smelting.

Westinghouse dipped along with Anaconda and Standard Oil of N. J. Bonds and Commodities were slightly mixed.

With the election just around the corner, brokerage quarters were two-minded regarding intermediate market trends.

Interesting to those who have ben trailing with the utilities were estimates fourth quarter earnings of the power industry would equal or exceed those of the corresponding 1937 months. On the basis of figures thus far made public, net of the power concerns for the third quarter was about 8 per cent under a year ago.

RAIN LOOMS FOR PARCHED WEST

Fall Drought To End, Says Weather Forecast.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Overcast skies carried a promise of rain today to middlewestern farm lands parched by a fall drought.

The weather bureau forecast showers for most of the midcontinent where an autumn heat wave has shattered temperature records during the past month.

The unseasonably warm weather was a boon to the city dweller. It also was welcomed during the corn harvest in agricultural areas but prolonged drought has caused anxiety on many farms.

TWISTER SWEEPS KANSAS AREAS

Flour Mill Damaged, 16 Boats Demolished At Lake.

WICHITA, Kan.—(INS)—A twister, mowing a 100-foot swath through Wichita early today, unroofed the Star Milling company warehouse and ruined more than 6,000 barrels of feed and flour. Damage amounted approximately $10,000, according to J. B. McKay, manager.

Continuing eastward, the twister passed over a lake near Augusta, upsetting or demolishing 16 sailboats, and completely destroying a concession cabin, bath houses and a few smaller buildings. C. J. Houston, caretaker, estimated the damage at $3,000.

None was injured, according to reports.

HOT FIGHT FOR SENATE ON IN CORN COUNTRY

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on interesting election contests in various states.)

(By Associated Press)

DES MOINES—Two snowy-haired militants—one a New Dealer despite an unofficial purge against him, the other a veteran opponent of Roosevelt policies—battle for a United States senatorship from Iowa.

Senator Guy M. Gillette, 59, is stumping the state in an attempt to keep it in the Democratic column where the Roosevelt sweep carried it in 1932.

Former Senator Lester J. Dickinson, 65, is trying to pull Iowa back into the Republican fold where it rested in comparative serenity for three-quarters of a century before Roosevelt.

In the background is the effect the outcome of the contest might have on Democratic presidential possibilities for Iowa's Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture.

Wouldn't Be 'Purged'.

Gillette, although long known as a liberal, voted against the original AAA, the NRA and the Roosevelt court reorganization bill. In the June primary he found his opponent, Rep. Otha D. Wearin, indorsed by WPA's Harry L. Hopkins and smiled upon by James Roosevelt. But Gillette beat Wearin about 2 to 1.

A week after the primary Gillette and the President lunched together in their shirtsleeves at the White House. Democratic Chairman James A. Farley and other party leaders have assured Gillette of their support.

Keynoted G.O.P. In 1932.

Keynoter in the 1932 Republican national convention and mentioned for the Republican presidential nomination in 1936, Dickinson was among the first in congress to assail the New Deal. He declares Gillette was in harmony with the purpose of the President's court bill and had introduced three bills which would have accomplished the "domination of the judiciary by the executive."

When Dickinson was defeated for reelection in 1936 President Roosevelt's name was at the top of the Democratic ticket. Iowa Republicans predict the result will be different this year. They count on the low crop prices to swing farm votes.

Tomorrow: Indiana.

Japanese armies and the large territories occupied, is still a long way from being conquered.

Japan's army rules only where it is, it was declared This is in the cities and along the railroads where strong military forces are garrisoned. Where there is no Japanese soldier, there is no Japanese authority. The vast areas of north and east China occupied by Japanese forces are filled with large Chinese guerilla forces which continue to wage war.

Cease 'Victimizing' China, Japan Warns.

TOKYO—(INS)—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye of Japan today delivered a sharp warning to foreign powers to cease "victimizing" China.

The premier's declaration was broadcast as a supplement to a drastic announcement of Nipponese Asiatic policy in which the Tokyo government set forth a virtual economic and political "Monroe Doctrine" for the far east.

Konoye declared that foreign powers should have a "clear understanding of the new situation unfolding in east Asia."

"China," he asserted, "hitherto has been victimized by the imperialistic ambitions of other foreign powers."

These ambitions, Konoye declared in an obvious reference to western powers, "constantly menaced China's peace and independence."

But he added:

"Japan realizes the necessity of revising the situation fundementally. Hereafter Japan desires that a new peace fabric, based on justice, should be established.

"Japan has no intention of rejecting the co-operation of foreign powers or injuring their legitimate rights and interests in China.

Konoye thanked Germany and Italy for their moral assistance to Japan in the Chinese conflict and then added significantly:

SHERIFF HUNTS STEEL WORKER

Man, 50, Missing Since Tuesday, Believed Amnesia Victim.

Sheriff E. P. Long was asked today to search for Pete Stoyer, 50, an employe of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, who was reported missing from his home at 746 Bowman street since early Tuesday evening.

Stoyer, who lived alone, is a Rumanian and speaks no English, acquaintances said. He was described as five feet, seven inches tall and weighs 150 pounds.

Friends said he suffered a severe head injury about a year ago and feared he may have become temporarily afflicted with amnesia and wandered away.

freedom for an unstable existence. Its workers are often worse demoralized than if they had no jobs at all.

"This is a campaign against further centralization of power and the sabotage of democracy," she asserted. "Republicans have always upheld the constitution and are proud of the part they had in defeating President Roosevelt's supreme court and reorganization bills."

She praised the Republican state ticket, asserting that "the party has never had a finer group of candidates to present to voters."

"No one who knows John W. Bricker (Republican candidate for governor) has ever questioned his integrity, and as a personal friend of his, I believed him when he told me there is no 70-30 deal between him and Gov. Davey," she said.

"The Democratic administration has made a racket of the state aid for aged division and the school foundation law, and Republicans intend to take both of them out of politics if their candidates are successful next Tuesday," Mrs. Cox added.

She was introduced by Earl A. McFarland, 17th district state central committeeman. Mrs. Ralph Hughes, president of the Republican Women's club, was in charge of the meeting.

Three Rallies Tonight.

County Republicans will hold three rallies tonight in Mansfield, Butler and Lexington as they prepare for their final big rally of the campaign tomorrow night at party headquarters here.

Rev. J W. Charvis of Columbus will address Republican colored voters at a meeting at 8 p. m. today at party headquarters. Candidates for county officers will be introduced after they return from the Butler and Lexington rallies earlier in the evening.

Attys. Raymond J. Brown and Stuert H. Cramer will speak for the state and national tickets at the Butler meeting at 8 p. m. in the grange hall.

At 7:30 p. m. Atty. Theodore Lutz of Shelby, and Atty. Cramer will speak at a rally in the Lexington town hall.

Thomas J. Herbert, Cleveland, candidate for attorney general, and Mrs. Kathryn E. Wetzel of Hamilton, representing the state Republican headquarters, will be the principal speakers at a mass meeting Friday night at the headquarters.

NEW DIRIGIBLE TO BE SMALLER

Navy Prepares to Experiment With Ship Sixth the Size of Macon, Akron.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The navy, after three years, is preparing to resume its experiments with airships on a cautious scale.

Completion of a personal study by President Roosevelt resulted in an announcement yesterday that the new dirigible which congress authorized would be small in comparison with its predecessors.

It will have less than one-sixth of the bulk of the ill-fated Akron and Macon. Its maximum length of 325 feet contrasts with their 785 feet and with the 660 feet of the decommissioned Los Angeles, which the new craft will replace.

Reduction of the dimensions raised the possibility that the airship may be all-metal instead of the fabric-covered Zeppelin type developed by Germany and adopted by the American navy after the World war.

Builders of the one all-metal blimp now in naval service at Lakehurst, N. J., said they were eager to tackle a ship up to 2,000,000 cubic feet, but nothing larger at this time (Congress authorized a craft up to 3,000,000 cubic feet.)

Mr. Roosevelt during his study hinted that his idea was to use the new dirigible as a coast patrol vessel, as well as to keep in training the aerial experts who manned the Macon and the Akron.

150 AT LECTURE

Physicians Hear Columbus and Toledo Doctors Here.

About 150 physicians from northcentral Ohio heard talks last night by Dr. J. F. Bateman, Columbus, and Dr. Edward J. McCormick, Toledo, at the fifth of a series of post-graduate lectures at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Discussing the treatment of cancer in women, Dr. McCormick said 15,000 women die in the United States every year from cancer of the breast, usually because they failed to seek treatment in time.

Dr. Bateman, who spoke on "Common Psychoses," asserted that all types of insanity can be classed under three headings: a change in thinking, feeling, or acting. The first step in effecting a cure, he said, is to learn which of the changes has taken place in the victim's mind.

The post-graduate lectures, held here every two weeks, are sponsored by the Ohio State Medical association.

LINCOLN
ZEPHYR
STYLE LEADER FOR 1939

THIS "TWELVE" . . . THE ONLY CAR OF ITS KIND

Three years ago the Lincoln Motor Company announced a car new in idea, appearance and performance—the 12-cylinder Lincoln-Zephyr. The public had not seen an automobile like it before. . . . The Lincoln-Zephyr for 1939 is still a new car. It is improved and refined. But the fundamental design which ushered in a new era of styling remains!

This year's Lincoln-Zephyr is more beautiful than ever before. Radiator grilles, set low, now sweep back vertically. Louvers are concealed. The sloping rear deck, keynote of Lincoln-Zephyr design, seems handsomer than ever. Here is the truly modern car!

But style alone does not make a motor car. What underlies the Lincoln-Zephyr's streamlined beauty? Many other distinctive features establish this decisively as a car apart . . . the brilliant performance, the trussed construction, the economy of operation.

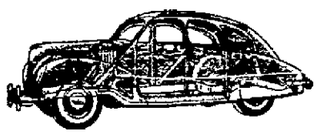
For beneath this outward beauty, in all closed types, is a framework of steel trusses—the famous "arch-bridge" construction. Body and frame are a rigid unit combining lightness and great strength.

A 12-cylinder engine in any medium-price car is unusual. The Lincoln-Zephyr V-type 12-cylinder engine has established its own standards of power, smoothness, flexibility. Its amazing record of 14 to 18 miles per gallon will still be causing comment when 1939 is over!

This year, the Lincoln-Zephyr has hydraulic brakes. They offer smooth, gentle stops under all conditions. . . . New this year, too, is the complete rubber-insulation of springs, axle assemblies and engine from the body-frame. Even greater quietness results in a car already quiet. . . . Interiors have been redesigned. Many new refinements are in evidence. Seats, again, have chair-height comfort.

Today more than 60,000 enthusiastic people own the Lincoln-Zephyr. The car for 1939 will continue to bring new joy—to give value beyond its medium price. Six body types, including two convertibles, Sedan and Coupe.

BENEATH ITS OUTWARD BEAUTY



A combination of features that makes it the only car of its kind.
1. Unit-body-and-frame—steel panels welded to steel trusses.
2. V-type 12-cylinder engine—smooth, quiet power.
3. 14 to 18 miles to the gallon.
4. High power-to-weight ratio—low center of gravity.
5. Comfort for six—passengers "amidships"—high visibility.
6. Hydraulic brakes.

DO YOU WANT RESTFUL SLEEP

The Vendol Man, now at Weinbergers' Drug Store tells how to awaken ever morning "on top of the world" by relieving sluggish bowels.

No Work or Effort Needed Now to Have Keen Appetite, Lots of Energy, Good Digestion, No Gas on Stomach or Acid Risings, By Letting Vendol Relieve Constipation.

Men and women all over this state who formerly suffered from poor sleep at night and miserable stomach distress by day, now feel physically fit, eat with a keen appetite and sleep soundly after taking Vendol, which is made from Nature's roots and herbs combined with valuable Alkalines, and getting satisfying relief from constipation.

"In my travels throughout Ohio introducing Vendol, I have seen some perfectly remarkable results which Vendol has given to tired-out, weak, nervous people, due to sluggish bowel action," says the Vendol Representative.

'Everybody knows that good, healthy exercise makes your blood tingle with vitality. It works up a hearty appetite, strengthens your powers of digestion and brings you sound, restful sleep. But when you are not active and you cannot give your body the benefit of plenty of exercise, then you need Vendol

"Vendol wakes up your sluggish intestines, takes out the laziness, stimulates them to action. Then your bowels move thoroughly, your stomach digests its food better, your appetite is sharp, you walk with a spring to your step, have clear eyes and a clear head, get good solid rest at night, and have a happy, optimistic outlook on life"

This statement comes from the Vendol Man as a result of a long experience with this medicine, not just a few scattered cases. Now, what Vendol has done for others, it can do for you.

You will like the tangy flavor of Nature's Herbs; best of all though, you will like the smooth, easy action on the bowels giving complete satisfying evacuations. You can give it to all the family, young or old, with assurance that it is perfectly safe.

So, don't put off getting the satisfaction Vendol will give. Come to Weinberger's Drug Store, 32 North Main street, ask for the Vendol Man and let him explain all about the Vendol ingredients and how this medicine will help you. Most all leading druggists sell Vendol.

PREMIER GETS FREE HAND TO DEAL WITH DUCE

Chamberlain Given Commons Authority to Proceed With Friendship Pact.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain had a free hand today to go forward with his policy of European appeasement following an overwhelming House of Commons vote in favor of the Anglo-Italian friendship pact.

Although submitted to sharp oppositionist criticism, the pact was approved by the house by a vote of 345 to 138.

In urging ratification of the pact, Chamberlain declared that the war in Spain was no longer a menace to European peace. By a strange twist of coincidence, A British-chartered Spanish freighter, registered at Santander, was attacked and sunk by a Spanish Insurgent warship ten miles off the Norfolk coast only a few hours before the vote was taken.

No Effect On Talk.

It appeared, however, that word of the sea battle at Britain's "door-step" had no effect on the prime minister's speech or the decision of the parliamentarians who voted for his foreign policy.

Passage of the motion for ratification of the pact gave Chamberlain's "realistic" foreign policy another smashing victory and cleared the way for new steps toward conciliation, which the British government is expected to carry out without delay.

Authoritative circles predicted further talks between Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler in the near future, and there were reports that such conversations might be extended to the scope of a full meeting of the four powers—Britain, France, Italy and Germany—which signed the Munich pact.

FINISHES OHIO PENSION REPORT

Bevens to Submit Statement to Davey for Approval.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Pension Chief Wray Bevens today was finishing his reply to the Social Security board's 12 requirements for changes in Ohio's pension administration.

The report, it was understood, will be submitted to Governor Davey late today and to the Social Security board probably tomorrow.

The Social Security board was to be asked to accept the report and send to Ohio the federal government's share of pension money which has been withheld since Oct. 1. This would immediately release the pension checks of 112,000 old age pensioners in the state.

RESERVOIR TO GET CLEANING

2 Crews of 15 Men Each to Scrub 6,500,000-Gallon Woodland Basin.

Mansfield's 6,500,000 - gallon Woodland reservoir will be given its annual cleaning tomorrow, James Herlihy, superintendent of the waterworks, announced today.

Herlihy said that for the past two days the water level in the huge storage basin had been allowed to drop and that Friday morning a crew of 15 workmen will begin the job of "scrubbing down" the interior.

Two crews of 15 men working 12-hour shifts, will have the job completed by Saturday noon, Herlihy said.

He explained that the concrete walls will be scrubbed and scraped and all sediment removed before a flushing and sterilizing.

The cleaning process was to have been delayed until next year, Herlihy said, but due to the necessity of installing a valve in connection with the installation of the new tank tower it was decided to complete the job at the same time.

During the cleansing period, pressure in the mains will be maintained directly from the Maxwell pumping stations through a by-pass at the reservoir.

MISTAKEN FOR BEAR, SHOT

ASHLAND, Me. —(AP)— Game wardens reported today that Kenneth L. Miller, 45, of Denison, O., was fatally shot by J. M. Holmes of Freehold, N. J., a retired army officer who mistook Miller's black coat for a bear. Both were hunting.

CHAPTER 36

"I HAVE ASKED a certain party to meet me here," Ronald explained to Judy when he entered the long, low living room, gay and comfortable with its cushions, flowered chairs, and books and lamps. "Mind if I slip a plain white card over your name on the door bell?"

"No, Ronald." Odd what implicit trust she had in anything this tall man with the unafraid gray eyes might do.

He was under fire. He was being watched. He had asked for the secrecy of her apartment. Why, she did not know and did not think to ask. It was enough that he had come to her, trusted her.

He paused at the top of the stairs, turning back as he spoke slowly.

"You're a real person, Judy Rogers. You may wonder—but you don't ask." For a moment his face was high-lighted with the quickness of the brilliant smile that had flashed when she first knew him.

Then she heard him running down the steps, noted the space of seconds that it took for the transfer of the card, heard him coming back.

* * *

She went away then to wander down to Eighth street, cross over to Sixth avenue, and buy Italian bread and some pressed meats and black olives. She hummed softly, throwing her brown head back to let the spring-haunted breeze stir her curly locks. She stopped at a flower vendor's cart and bought red roses.

The elevated rumbled overhead as she walked up the avenue where the weary old trains still follow a noisy steel path through the air. Boys and girls passed, carrying briefcases or portfolios, talking in rapt tones about stories that were "slanted" for this magazine and that, the value of Van Gough's paintings, the portraits that were showing at this gallery or that.

Judy smiled in the violet darkness.

No one mentioned parties unless they were parties where young people, imbued with the spirit of endeavor and creation, would talk and talk of those who had achieved, where they themselves only strived. But so long as one held a cord to the vision, and kept eyes on the distant gleam, life was good.

* * *

Judy wanted to fall in step with some of the young people and tell them she belonged. She was their age, but she felt so many years older. She had lived so many more lives in her brief span of years, she explained to her questioning self, and then wondered if, after all, she had. What did she know of these other boys and girls?

She saw herself reflected in a plate glass window as she passed. She might have been any school girl with her plaid skirt revealing slim, shapely legs and ankles; her brown hair blowing under the suede beret whose green matched her suede jacket. It was an ensemble she had designed for Cordell which the great courturier had publicized.

So she came to her own doorway. The lantern lights at either side of the entrance were blinking sleepy eyes Two people sat on the wide white steps, eating peanuts from a big brown bag.

"Hi, Judy," Bob Cushing said. "Want to join us on the stoop—the peanuts are good—or would you rather ask us up?"

"It is cold out here," caroled Marjorie, "and we've got an arm load of wood for a fire."

But Ronald? Had he finished his business and left? If he hadn't, what would Marjorie and Bob think when they found him upstairs? But she could explain that—she could say that she ran out on an errand.

She wished for a moment that Bob wasn't a newspaper man. If he got wind of the fact that Ronald had met someone here tonight, he might scent news. A good reporter had to be loyal to his sheet. She couldn't ask him to close his eyes. She couldn't explain that whatever happened was all right because after all, she had only her own faith to support her words.

But Ronald—had he waited?

She slipped her key into the lock. The lamps still shone. The fire crackled. The room was empty.

But pinned to a lamp shade was a note written in large letters that flashed across the room to the three who had entered.

"Thanks for the use of the room, Judy. Sorry I cant wait to see you. RONALD."

There was a studied quietness in the room. Each one of the three people knew that the other two was searching for some word that would restore the easy comradeship of three months ago.

Simultaneously they realized there was no such word. The import of that message, scrawled across a sheet of drawing paper with a stick of black charcoal, had to be faced.

It was then that Bob drew an evening paper from his pocket and tossed it to Judy.

"Have you read this, Judy?"

She took it to the low hassock near the fire and read, the green beret still on her brown curls. When she finished she looked up, a little line of worry between her eyes.

"The New York Bar association is investigating? Is that true, Bob?"

He nodded. "Only formality, Judy. Birrell is mightly well liked. Nobody wants him to be guilty."

"Then why do people act as though he is?" persisted Judy, tossing the beret across the room where it lay like a green ball on a window seat.

Bob sat down, too, and cracked another peanut. "Nobody wants him to be found guilty as I just told you. Nobody is acting that way. Don't you see, my dear Miss Rogers, that it is just as important to clear him as to convict him?"

"Yes, yes, I suppose it is."

"Now that we've stumbled on a secret, Judy, is there anything you can tell?" the newspaperman continued. "We might help, you know."

It was as evident as the old brass andirons on the hearth, the brass platter above the fire on the smooth wooden shelf, that Ronald had used the room for a conference. No use denying that. So Judy answered:

"There isn't anything to tell except what you know. Ronald asked to use my room for a little while."

"You didn't see who came, who went out?" Bob was leaning forward, his brows drawn, his eyes narrowed in thought.

"I didn't watch."

"You might have helped. If someone is trying to frame him and he met that man—"

"I never thought."

The fire began to go down and Bob tossed another log on the low blaze. Marjorie declared she was hungry, took the bundles Judy had brought from the delicatessen, and began to make sandwiches. Bob helped her.

* * *

Judy did not move from that hassock. Why hadn't she kept her eyes opened? She could have lurked in the shrubbery. She might have helped Ronald. But she had thought of nothing but obeying him—leaving him a free field.

"White or rye bread, Judy?" Marjorie called.

As if anyone cared—when Ronald's honor was at stake! But she answered steadily enough: "Rye, Marg, and no mustard."

Through the screen that mention of Ronald's troubles had thrown across her mind, a new thought presented itself—Marjorie and Bob seemed to know each other pretty well on such a few weeks' acquaintance. Marjorie and Bob—well, why not?

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

"Indian Hunting Grounds," by Caroline D. Emerson, is a collection of eight stories about the Indians of North America. In the front of the book is a very interesting map of North America showing just where the Iroquois, Cherokees, Pueblos, Dakotas, Eskimos, Aztecs, Mayan and Tlingit Indians lived.

The latter were famous for their totem poles, the beautiful carved patterns on their boats, and lived by catching salmon in their streams and the whale in the Pacific ocean.

There are quite a few books on Indain lore, now on display, at the library. Among the better known are: "Skunny Wundy," "Kootenai Why Stories," "Wigwam Stories," and "Basket Woman," just to mention a few.

UPTURN EXTENDS TO REAL ESTATE

Demand for Farms Leads Revival In Property Sales.

The general upturn in business and industrial activities during the past month has extended to the real estate field in Richland county, with the demand for farms leading the revival, Mansfield realtors said today.

Sale of properties valued at more than $60,000, including four large farms in the Mansfield area, during October, was reported by Clarence Connor of the C. Connor Realty company. Among the transactions were five city properties, two lots in South Hills, two in Wooster Heights and one in Coolridge Heights.

Ease CHEST COLD misery

First massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. This relieves the distress.

Then, to make its long-continued poultice-and-vapor action last even longer, spread a thick layer of VapoRub on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. This also gives the skin extra protection against chilling.

Long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps on working—loosens phlegm—eases muscular soreness or tightness—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion.

BOARD READY FOR ELECTION

Adds 25 New Voting Booths and 9 Ballot Box Sets to Rural Equipment.

The Richland county board of elections today added 25 new voting booths and nine metal ballot box sets to the voting equipment in rural sections of the county, standardizing election equipment in the city and county for the first time.

The ballot box sets, which include four boxes of varying sizes that fit inside a large box, were purchased from Mrs. Minnie McCullough, South Main road, who holds the patent on the combination boxes, A. F. Porter, election board clerk, said.

Purchased from an eastern firm, the wood and canvas voting booths will be distributed this week to voting places in most of the county's 18 townships. Each township will reimburse the county for the cost of the equipment, Porter said.

With election just a week away, ballots tabulation sheets, pencils and other supplies were being prepared today at the board of elections office for distribution to the county's 90 precincts.

A Vote To Save Lives.

AN effort is being made this week by the Richland County Anti-Tuberculosis association to explain to all voters in this county why there is need for the money that can be provided by passage of the one-half mill tax levy, to be voted on next Tuesday.

A pamphlet issued by the association explains the advantages of early treatment of tubercular cases; of the lower cost of early treatment and of the vastly increased chance of recovery if proper attention is given immediately after examination discloses a start of the disease.

While the ballot reads "for the purpose of care of indigent tubercular cases," it has been found that relatively few of those who become afflicted with this dread disease are financially able to meet all of the costs involved in needed treatment.

In many instances relatives and friends aid, to the extent of their ability, in bearing part of the cost of sanitorium care, or other suitable treatment, but public funds must be used to meet the difference.

It should be generally understood, as pointed out in the pamphlet, that no one is immune from tuberculosis, that anyone who is exposed to contact with victims of the disease, even in its early stages, may contract tuberculosis.

Proper care for tubercular patients is therefore not only a humanitarian measure but is also an act to safeguard the health of self and family.

As is also explained, the county commissioners are required to furnish medical care for tubercular cases in which the patients are unable to pay for it themselves. The simple fact is, however, that Richland county commissioners do not have the money to meet these costs and that many sufferers from tuberculosis will lack treatment—and die—unless this half-mill tax levy (50 cents on each $1,000 of real estate tax valuation) is passed.

Do not overlook the small ballot on which this issue appears. Vote FOR the one-half mill tax levy and you will be voting to save human lives and restore health to many unfortunate adults and children in Richland county—possibly a friend or neighbor among them.

Remedy for Radicalism.

PEOPLE who think the country is going politically and economically haywire should be interested in a statement by Frederick C. Crawford, vice president of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Crawford, as might be guessed, is a conservative. But in addressing a national group of investment bankers, he departs widely from the normal conservative attitude.

The way to smash all dangerous "isms," he says, is to put people back to work and run the country's industrial machine full blast, regardless of "regulation and obstruction." Radicalism will vanish as prosperity returns.

"The factories of America are half obsolete," he tells the bankers. "Forget criticism. Renew your faith in American industry. Invent new ways to keep up this flow of capital to industry. If laws hinder, get them changed. Forget your old methods. Focus your attention on the quality of management, which is all that counts today."

He would like to see the political situation changed, he says, but this is difficult to accomplish directly, because people in distress have never turned from left to right. "We have had the cart before the horse. We have forgotten that only a prosperous America can be a conservative America."

Another Slice for Hitler.

SINCE Hitler's Czech coup, people everywhere have been wondering what his next move would be. It is taken for granted that as soon as he has "consolidated his gains" he will start again on the road of conquest, peacefully if he can, but using force if necessary.

Writing in the magazine Ken, Ladislas Farago maintains that Hitler intends pushing on into Russia, to grab a large slice of the rich Ukraine grain fields, in 1940. Everybody has known that the Nazis covet that region, and it is laid down in "Mein Kampf" as one of the important conquests required for the Nazi empire. Most onlookers, though, expect that Hitler will do more mopping up in southeastern Europe before he tackles that job.

The tip-off writer tells of a special military organization already prepared under the direction of a renegade Russian general, to plan the Ukraine invasion. If he is right, it looks to an outsider as though Stalin and his associates had better stop their executions and unify their own people against the testing time.

Active New England.

THE New England council and the engineering societies, following a joint survey of the major industries of that regior, report surprising progress in a modernization program which has been under way there since the latter part of 1936 and which is to be continued, and perhaps increased, in 1939. The industries represented include metal products, textiles, machinery, paper, woolens, furniture, printing, food products, shoes, chemicals and granite

Sums spent ranged from $1,000 to more than $1,000,000. The money went for new machinery, new plants, re-designing products to meet competition, additional equipment, water-softening and filtration plants, replacing obsolete machinery, and so on.

Manufacturers who have been carrying on this work are so pleased with results that others are expected to follow their example.

Mention is being made of the peculiar case of a Chicago schoolboy who sees everything upside down. No attention is paid to people who merely think that way.

Premier Chamberlain says he will go to Munich again to see Hitler, and the world wonders what he's going to give away this time.

It is rather discouraging to think that the outcome of an election may be decided by those who "boo" at a political meeting.

Admitted to the union in 1850, California is among the younger states—which may account for some of its younger ideas.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Did you know that:

Your tonsils can be toasted out?

That short wave radio treatments can cure gonorrhea, paresis, relieve many types of arthritis, colds and some types of skin eruptions?

That you can be thoroughly exercised physically on a hospital cot?

It comes under the head of physio-therapy, which was given impetus by the World war and now medical men are simply captivated by it.

An exhibit of the various mechanisms for performing the treatments came to Washington and we looked it over. Strangely, the most important phases are simply advancement of two of mother's old remedies. Hot water bottles, hot baths, and massage.

* * *

How to Raise a Fever.

BUT the old fireside systems won't turn the trick. Masses of hot water bottles can be applied until the skin burns without materially benefiting arthritis. Here is the new principle. Some disease bacteria, such as cause gonorrhea, begin to die off when body temperature reaches 106 to 107 degrees. The new-fangled processes simply produce an artificial fever. The treatment is called fever-therapy.

A spray bath or vapor bath at a temperature of about 110 degrees, applied for an hour or so will bring an artificial temperature of 106 or above and hold it there as long as the physician decides is wise or necessary. It may be 4-6 hours; it may be as much at 12. At the end of that time you may be cured of an infection of gonorrhea. Cures may come after treatments in other ailments.

It isn't quackery. Mayo Institute uses it, as do Johns Hopkins, Walter Reed hospital in Washington, and other major hospitals.

* * *

Enter the Radio.

BUT there is another way of doing the same thing. It was discovered that short wave radio waves poured through the body will also bring up the temperature. Dr. Harvey Cushing, famous Boston brain surgeon and father-in-law of Jimmy Roosevelt, was a pioneer in the experiment.

The radio system has special advantages. It can be applied to particular spots, such as shoulders, legs, or face to raise the temperature through the affected area. We tried the radio system on our own manly chest and could feel the warmth clean through to the coat lining in the back. It reaches deeply-lying muscular infections and bone bruises. Colleges are buying the machines to repair battered football players.

* * *

The Electric Knife.

ANOTHER thing, an electric scalpel for performing operations and sealing up blood vessels cut during the process was placed in our hands. We operated on a slab of steak and it was like slicing through butter with a razor blade. An electric spark moves ahead of the needle point, cutting flesh and mildly toasting it to stop blood flowing.

Remember those electric devices in the old pool rooms on which you could get an electric shock? Well, they have perfected them to exercise people. Muscles of broken limbs can be toned up by simply touching the device to the skin in certain spots. No longer do the muscles atrophy while in splints.

Now that you know about these things don't try them on yourself without guidance of your physician. A few degrees too much fever-therapy becomes simple boiling.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

MELANCHOLY DAYS ARE HERE

Memories of 'Wet' and 'Dry' Days

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—The fact that Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, is in danger of being defeated for re-election to the senate by Robert A. Taft meets curious and varying reactions in Washington. His political career has been of unusual interest, especially since the spring of 1930.

Bulkley announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator that spring on a wringing wet platform. He demanded repeal of the 18th amendment. The whole country was inclined to be amused. The dry wave had reached its high-water mark in the preceding congressional election, when Afred E. Smith went down to such a defeat as had not previously happened to the candidate of a major party in this country, though it was to be surpassed by the Republican party in the ensuing presidential election, and then surpassed again four years later.

Herbert Hoover's "dry" sweep of the country in 1928 had resulted in the election of a dry Republican senator from Maryland, a dry Republican congressman from the Norfolk-Portsmouth district in Virginia. In the midst of the Ohio primary Henry H. Curran, then president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, was examined by the senate lobby committee. In a long series of questions and forced answers as to individual campaigns in the preceding election, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, often called the greatest senatorial inquisitor of all time, sought to compel Curran to admit that his association was merely wasting the money of its contributors in a hopeless fight to obtain legal liquor.

* * *

BUT this was only part of the story. Ohio was the birthplace of the Anti-Saloon League. The only spot in the state that was outstanding for its wet sentiment was Cincinnati, and this was Republican, whereas Bulkley was running in the Democratic primary!

Bulkley had the backing, in Cleveland, of Newton D. Baker, who had been Woodrow Wilson's secretary of war. Also of Benedict Crowell, who had been assistant secretary of war. Both were enthusiastic wets.

It so happened that the governor of Ohio had appointed Roscoe C. McCulloch to the senate when Senator Theodore E. Burton died. It was for the unexpired Burton term that Bulkley was running. McCulloch had voted in the senate to approve the nomination tor the supreme court of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina. Parker had offended two important groups of voters, the negroes and labor, by decisions as a circuit court judge. Both groups were potent in Ohio. Further, the whole Republican ticket was in disfavor in Ohio that year because the governor himself was unpopular.

* * *

SO IT seemed in advance that Bulkley MIGHT have a chance in the election if he could only win the primary, despite the fact that Ohio had defeated one of its outstanding statesman, Senator Atlee Pomerene, only eight years before just on the suspicion of being "moist."

But there was an even more important factor, not then realized. The death of Wayne B. Wheeler had left the Anti-Saloon League without political brains of any moment. The once dominating dry organization did nothing to prevent the candidacy in the primary against Bulkley of TWO avowed drys: Bulkley won the primary, and then the election. It was the turning of the tide. It was one of the guiding beacons which resulted in the Republican party going "moist" at its next national convention, and the Democratic party going all the way wet.

In the Senate Bulkley became for a while a sort of left bower for Senator Carter Glass. There are many who think that had he stayed with that group, instead of being weaned away by President Roosevelt, he would not be in danger today.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

The A. F. L. Speaks.

By ERIK M. ERIKSSON
(Professor of History, University of Southern California.)

A FEW weeks ago, at Houston, Texas, the American Federation of Labor concluded its fifty-eighth annual convention. Including as it does over three million workers organized in the form of craft unions, this labor organization commands public attention when it speaks. In view of its two year fight with the radical C. I. O., there was more than ordinary interest manifested in the recent convention. This interest was greatly increased when the President of the United States sent a message to the convention urging that labor cease its internal warfare and that the government, labor and industry co-operate for the common good.

Following the receipt of this message, Daniel Tobin, President of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, demanded in a fiery address before the convention, that peace be made with the CIO in order that labor might present a united front. In spite of this demand and Mr. Roosevelt's plea, the convention overwhelmly voted not to compromise with "dictatorship or communistic leadership." A resolution adopted with only one dissenting vote called for the ouster or resignation of John L. Lewis as the head of the C. I. O. as the price of peace in the ranks of labor. To this resolution Mr. Lewis replied that he would resign if William Green would likewise resign as head of the A. F. L. This Mr. Green showed no inclination to do.

In the light of these developments it appears that the country will continue to be plagued by jurisdictional disputes between A. F. L. and the C. I. O. which have done so much to promote the economic dislocation of the past two years. Too much blame should not be placed on the A. F. L. for this situation, however. It must be remembered that the organization attempted some months ago to make peace with the C. I. O. but without success. Opposed as it is and always has been to communism and extreme radicalism the A. F. L. can hardly be expected to yield to the C. I. O. which has been dominated by radicals. Nevertheless, it would be in the public interest and to the advantage of industry and labor itself if some basis for peace between these two powerful labor organizations could be found.

Another matter which received attention in the A. F. L. convention was the National Labor Relations Act. This, of course, was expected. When the act was passed in 1935, William Green hailed it as "Labor's Magna Carta." But, as the months have passed, the A. F. L. leadership has become more and more disappointed with the legislation. Mr. Green and his colleagues have come to the conclusion that the National Labor Relations Board is an ally of the C. I. O.," and they have not hesitated to say so. This explains the action of the convention in demanding nine changes in the act.

The fact that the A. F. L. has finally come to the point where it is ready to fight for changes in the Labor Relations Act is of great significance. Naturally, what this organization wants is a law which will favor its members. In order to get what it wants support will have to be secured from congressmen who are not particularly friendly to the A. F. L. Under these circumstances it might be possible during the forthcoming session of Congress to secure additional amendments which will eliminate its one-sidedness and make it a law which will be truly American in character. The public, the employers and the minority of the workers, whether members of a union or not, are entitled to the protection of the law just as much as union members affiliated with either the A. F. L. or C. I. O.

Actions taken in relation to other matters by the convention indicated that the relations between the A. F. L. and the government at Washington are not as cordial as they have been. At present the organization is at best a lukewarm ally of the New Deal.

Words of the Wise

Success is full of promise till men get it; then it is a last year's nest, from which the bird has flown.—H. W. Beecher.

The sublime and ridiculous are often so nearly related that it is difficult to class them separately. One step below the sublime makes the ridiculous, and one step above the ridiculous makes the sublime again.—Thomas Paine.

A Farmer's Diary

Taken for a Ride.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY FRIEND overtook me in his ancient Model T. "Get in," he said. "It's transportation. It gets you there and it brings you back. Ever own one?"

"Five—and a truck," I told him. "The first one I had was in 1913—the second automobile in our neighborhood. The springs were stiff in all cars in those days, the bodies were perched high, and the upholstery was none too soft."

"I know—they were funny looking."

"And some funny things happened. I'll never forget the time I took a carpenter out to look over some work I planned to have him do. We drove along a narrow, gravel byway. A week before a heavy rain had washed six even ditches across the road. I was not driving fast, but the momentum of the car was too great, and the time too short to see the danger ahead."

He chuckled. "I can guess what happened."

"When the front wheels dropped into the first ditch and rose to the crest of the second, my carpenter went bouncing to the top. The wheel saved me the first hard jolt. The bow above our heads was seasoned hickory, and sharp edged. The carpenter struck it with a thud that knocked his derby flatter than a pancake.

"He started back toward the seat. Just then the front wheels hit the second ditch and the cushions met him coming down and boosted him back up again. Five times I saw that carpenter fly back and forth as though he were a shuttle. On the last upward plunge, he missed the bow, and his battered head broke through the top.

"I had clung to the heavy wooden steering wheel until my hands were blistered, but only once, on the rebound from that last ditch, did my head graze the bow above. When I could stop the car I had to laugh. It made the carpenter very angry. He suggested, with strong language, that he had no further desire to go anywhere with me, or to see the work I wanted done. I took him to a doctor, who took eight stitches in his smooth bald head and bandaged it completely.

"Did he get over it?" inquired my companion.

"Oh, yes—we often laughed together since, over the incident.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SEEDS fascinate me. They do something to me—. I like to have seeds around, especially the diminutive ones—those infinitesmal specks which break into rainbow tides of poppies, lupine, marigold and mignonette. I have a place in my desk where I keep them, near at hand, so I may find them easily when the need comes.

What human need can a seed fill? You'd be surprised! As a matter of fact, you know the need as well as I—though you've probably never used seeds to cure it. For you, too, must have those empty, doubting days—

Days when nothing happens in your heart or head except a dull and weary wonder what it's all about and why you're here. And you look at yourself with sick, disgusted eyes, remembering the bright years before the doubts began.

Those radiant first years when everything was important . . . when everything was exciting . . . when you believed in yourself with shining, unscarred confidence. What great things you were going to do! What a wonderful person you were going to be! So good, so brave, so invincible! Nothing would ever stop YOU! Nothing would ever turn YOU into one of those stupid, dreary old flops, such as you saw around you. No—YOU were going to make all the fairy tales come true . . . kill all the dragons . . . rescue the Sleeping Beauty!

Gallant, gay young years! And never for a second did you doubt your own power to do it all . . . or never for an instant lose that sense of your own secret, wonderful power. But now—

It's all so different, now. Everything's so stale . . . so meaningless . . . your own self, most of all. How could you ever imagine that YOU were cut out for great adventures . . . that YOUR heart held songs and sunrises and magic beyond all counting!

* * *

HOW do I know you say these things? Because everybody says these things. Those empty days, those doubting days, come to us all. That's why I keep my seeds—they hold the answer to that emptiness. They hold the healing of that doubt. They give me back MYSELF.

How? Very simply. When the words begin to falter and my heart begins to lag and I know the black mood is on, I reach into my desk and take out those seeds and spill them into my hand . . .

Such little things, those seeds. So insignificant. Dumb, drab trifles with no outward sign of wonder or delight. Yet, think of all they hold!

Look at this poppy seed—a black speck smaller than the tiniest pin head. But in that speck there waits a marvel of living loveliness! A thrusting plant that rises to my knee. Proud stalk all set with fluttering pennants of soft satin leaves. And, in that stalk, the cells that store up food . . . and all the complicated tools for serving poppy life. And, at one end, a web of thrusting roots . . . and at the other, like a tossing flame, great glowing blooms with scarlet petals thin as crinkled silk . . . about a heart that holds the miracle of life!

Think of it—all that within a seed so tiny it can hardly be measured; an insignificant seed that is thrown about at the mercy of wind and rain. All that in a seed . . . pound of tissue . . . square yards of petal and leaf . . . concentrated essences of fragrance and color . . . and, most magic of all, that secret plan which God alone can trace—the mystery of life. All in a seed.

And yet you despair about yourself! You feel that you "don't amount to anything!"

How do you know what you amount to? If a seed can hold such wonders, what marvels may not be hidden in a man! What endless beauty and power may you not unfold . . . you who are just another greater seed! You believe in that seed, don't you? Then believe in yourself!

BELIEVE IN YOUR OWN MYSTERY . . . AND IN YOUR OWN SECRET MEANING . . . IN YOUR OWN HIDDEN GLORY! BELIEVE . . . AND BE GLAD . . . AND GET GOING!

There's the cure for any doubting day . . . any empty life!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Somebody at the meeting of the Society of American Magicians came up with the suggestion that Black Cat day be set aside each year in honor of the late Harry Houdini, and I am all in favor of the idea.

Black Cat day, of course, is Halloween, and it was just 12 years ago on Halloween that Houdini died. Twelve years can bring great change in many phases of life, but the Houdini influence is probably stronger today than it ever was. Twenty-eight magic societies have pledged themselves to support the annual Houdini day idea, and the only contention is whether it shall be known as Houdini day or simply National Magic day.

Anyway, the magic boys on Halloween will invade the hospitals, orphanages, children's homes and schools, displaying their sleight-of-hand gratis to one and all. On that day at least they aren't going to slight anybody.

* * *

WHICH reminds us of the time Paul Duke was playing a theater in a Pennsylvania tank town, and his act wasn't going over so well. His ledgerdemain somehow just wasn't coming off, and the audience, becoming restive, began tossing little verbal brickbats at the harassed magician.

"So you're a magician!" boomed a scornful voice in the audience. . . . "Yes, I am, and what do you want to make of it!" Duke screamed back.

"Then," continued the voice, "how come you can't fill these seats in the balcony."

Incidentally, Chester Morris turned up at a meeting of the American Magicians on a recent visit to New York and showed himself to be quite adept at the magic trade. He gives a lot of his time to it on the coast, and so does Harold Lloyd, the film comedian.

Helen Claire, who gives such a biting portrayal of a Southern belle in Claire Boothe's vitriolic "Kiss the Boys Goodbye"—"My ambition? To become a great actress; to make a lot of money; and then go back home to Alabama and spend my declining years. You're right, Honey, I do love the South."

Raymond Massey, any time you compliment him on his superb performance as "Abe Lincoln in Illinois"—"All praise must go to Robert Sherwood; he has written a truly lovely play."

Timely Editorial

Yes, We All Pay.

Not government, but economic enterprise, has provided the money for relief—90 billion dollars since 1930—Lammot du Pont, internationally known industrialist, tells the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

It is true, as Mr. du Pont says, that economic enterprise finances, chiefly, the WPA, the CCC, the HOLC, the AAA and all the rest of the alphabetical services.

Economic enterprise is the big income taxpayer, but Mr. du Pont well might have gone one step further back in research. Economic enterprise must get the million and billions, which it pays into the federal treasury, dollar by dollar by cutting wages of workers or increasing prices.

In the last analysis it must appear that every person in the United States except wards of the public and people on some form of relief, has been assessed and will be assessed to pay the cost of the depression.—Toledo Blade.

STRIKE ENDED AT MIDDLETOWN

gates were reopened for the first time since Oct. 25, when an attempt to resume operations resulted in an outbreak of violence.

'Few' Supporters.

Governor Davey issued a statement later at Columbus in which he said calling off of the strike demonstrated:

That it was an admission that Lewis had only a small per cent of the employes in the Tobacco Workers Union; and

That Lewis "cannot operate when the state government stands for law and order."

The governor said that if a large majority of the plant employes had been enthusiastic CIO members, "it would not make any difference how many troops were in town; the plant could reopen, and so many would remain away from work that it could not operate."

However, he added, "Mr. Lewis was afraid to let the plant reopen under protection of the law because most of the employes would have gone back to work with a song of joy in their hearts."

The governor said the strike cost Middletown workers nearly $150,000.

He accused Philip Phillips, regional director of the National Labor Relations board, of "attempting to use the power of the federal government to force these unwilling employes to become the dues-paying slaves of John Lewis." Phillips, he asserted, declined to hold an election to determine the majority of employes desiring to belong to the union.

Charging again that "the only weapons which John Lewis has for use in his industrial warfare are intimidation, violence, bloodshed if necessary, lawlessness and the National Labor board," Davey declared that the labor leader "hopes to have his own way without interference from the state after the first of the year."

Members of the union, who struck for a closed shop and a checkoff, voted shortly before last midnight to end the dispute and return to work, as the troops were en route from Columbus, Delaware and Washington Court House.

The union acted at the request of CIO regional directors Paul Fuller of Cincinnati and John Owens of Columbus to call off the strike. Fuller said he would file charges with the National Labor Relations Board.

CIO Organizer Sam Sponseller announced that the union vote to end the strike was 577 to 1. He said strikers were instructed to return home and report for work at 8 a. m.

Pickets who had left entrances of the plant to attend the meeting, called to act on the request of Fuller and Owens, did not return to their posts.

Later a large crowd milled about a railroad station near the plant, to watch guardsmen. Brig Gen. Frank D. Henderson, in command, said the troops would remain on duty despite the union's action.

Fuller expressed great relief when informed that the strike had been ended and asserted that the union now had 700 members and was "getting stronger."

Philip G. Phillips, regional director of the NLRB at Cincinnati, also expressed pleasure over the outcome and asserted that it was "the only thing to do."

Harpring declared that "there will be no discrimination against any of the workers, regardless of their organization affiliation."

Owens, in a statement as president of the CIO Ohio industrial union council, described the order calling out troops as "the most inexcusable of the many vicious acts by Governor Davey during his term in office."

See Blood Stains.

Police said stains apparently made by blood had been found on a coal chute leading to the cellar. They also announced discovery of a secret room adjoining the basement and expressed belief it might have been used as a gangland execution chamber.

Lieut. Thomas Curley reported finding a machine gun hidden in the room and said walls of the chamber were marked by about 15 holes seemingly made by bullets.

In a second hidden room, Lieut. Curley said, a box containing a number of counterfeit federal revenue stamps and liquor bottle labels had been discovered.

As the search progressed, Assistant District Attorney Jacob J. Rosenblum continued a steady questioning of the three men—Demetrius Gula, 30, a pinball operator, John Virga, 34, a clothes presser, and William Jacknis, a WPA playground instructor accused of serving as the "finger man" for the gang.

Face Double Charges.

Rosenblum said the men would be held on double kidnap charges in two other abductions but that no action would be taken against them in the Fried case pending completion of the police basement search and a laboratory analysis of the bones.

Benjamin Farber, 33, a Brooklyn coal dealer who Hoover said paid $1,900 for his release after the gang abducted him last April 18, expressed surprise at the detention of Jacknis.

Farber said that when members of the gang had asked him to name an intermediary, he had suggested Jacknis as "one of my pals."

G-men said, however, that his erstwhile friend was the one who betrayed Farber to the syndicate as a potential victim.

The other Brooklyn kidnaping to which Hoover said "certain ones" of the quartet had confessed was the abduction of Norman Miller, 19, for whose release his father, head of a stevedoring concern, paid $13,000.

DRUM CORPS TO HELP TROOP 16

Legion Unit to Play Before Showing of Scout-Sponsored Picture.

Boy Scouts of Troop 16, who are selling advance tickets for the Madison picture "Sons of the Legion," will receive support Friday night from the American Legion Drum corps of McVey post when that group rallies in front of the theater to play several numbers, and later appears on the stage.

Farm Bureau Also Endorses 4-Year Term for State Officials at Meeting.

Resolutions recommending the establishing of a bi-partisan board to head the state highway department, four-year terms for all state officials and the administration of relief by local governing bodies were passed last night by the Richland county farm bureau at its annual meeting.

The organization also went on record as favoring the continuance of the federal soil conservation program, a 3½ per cent interest rate for farm mortgages, and retention of the 65 per cent majority required to pass real estate levies and bond issues.

Opposes One-House Plan.

The group opposed the adoption of an unicameral (one house) legislature in Ohio and the licensing of gambling devices as a source of state revenue. Members favored a personal income tax instead of an increase in real estate tax.

Another resolution passed by the group calls for the development of cooperative hospitalization and health associations.

The county resolutions will be submitted to the state farm bureau at the annual convention in Columbus in two weeks.

Smith Re-elected.

Mrs. Clarence Griebling of Troy township and Mrs. George Barnes of Jackson township were elected directors.

Robinson reported that the dollar volume of the county farm bureau's business dropped off 30 per cent during the past year. He attributed the decrease to the reduced price of farm commodities and the taking over of the farm bureau's egg business by the cooperative creamery at Shelby.

Robinson said stock in the organization had increased from $40,820 to $44,890 during the past year.

C. C. Bair, of the state farm bureau, Columbus, urged the cooperative purchasing of commodities as a means of solving the nation's economic problems.

Nearly 300 members of the farm organization attended the meeting which was held in the basement of the First M. E. church, Mansfield.

NEW FORD V-8 CARS for 1939

GREATER VALUE for every motorist has been built into the two new Ford V-8 cars for 1939. They further express the forward-looking policy of the Ford Motor Company—traditional Ford dependability and economy plus progressive engineering.

Each car is distinctive in design, yet each has something of the fine streamlining of the Lincoln-Zephyr—recognized style leader for the industry. Interior appointments are in keeping with outward beauty. Every detail is styled for good taste and good service.

Both are big, roomy cars, equipped with hydraulic brakes and powered with the V-8 engine that gives you so much extra smoothness. This year the quiet performance of the V-8 engine has been matched by the new quiet built into every part of the car.

The 1939 Ford cars bring you greater riding ease on every road. New seat construction, flexible transverse springs, and big hydraulic shock absorbers provide triple-cushioned riding comfort.

Both 1939 Ford cars are Ford-priced for greater dollar value. Both bring new meaning to the Ford phrase, "The Quality Car in the Low-price Field."

WE SAY OLD QUAKER BEST WAY TO SAVE MONEY ON WHISKEY

960 Out of 1,000 Men—in Dramatic Survey—Confirmed Our Belief that OLD QUAKER, Now 3 Years Old, is an Amazing Bargain!

You'll welcome this news! You can save money on whiskey without cutting corners on quality. Why do we say so? Because the judgment of 960 out of 1,000 men is that Old Quaker—now 3 years old—is a mild, ripe, full-bodied whiskey. But—we call your attention to the fact that Old Quaker sells at an amazing low price.

We actually sought out 1,000 men—from 22 states—asked them to try Old Quaker and give us their unbiased opinion. "Smell it!", we said. "Taste it! Swallow a drink of it! Then tell us what you think!"

Not one of these men knew the name, age or price of the whiskey he was trying. Yet 960 praised its smoothness, mellowness, mildness. So again, we say:—Look at Old Quaker's rock-bottom price.

What This Means To You

If these 960 out of 1,000 men are right, then Old Quaker has got something you want! It's got fine quality at a low price! Make this same, simple trial yourself! Convince yourself that Old Quaker is good news for every thrifty drinker!

"Boy—that's a good whiskey...it's a real smooth drink!" is the comment of Warren Snyder after trying Old Quaker.

"It's mild—that's what I like about it," says Dan J. Negas, Atlanta Hotel Man, of Old Quaker.

A Vote To Save Lives.

AN effort is being made this week by the Richland County Anti-Tuberculosis association to explain to all voters in this county why there is need for the money that can be provided by passage of the one-half mill tax levy, to be voted on next Tuesday.

A pamphlet issued by the association explains the advantages of early treatment of tubercular cases; of the lower cost of early treatment and of the vastly increased chance of recovery if proper attention is given immediately after examination discloses a start of the disease.

While the ballot reads "for the purpose of care of indigent tubercular cases," it has been found that relatively few of those who become afflicted with this dread disease are financially able to meet all of the costs involved in needed treatment.

In many instances relatives and friends aid, to the extent of their ability, in bearing part of the cost of sanitorium care, or other suitable treatment, but public funds must be used to meet the difference.

It should be generally understood, as pointed out in the pamphlet, that no one is immune from tuberculosis, that anyone who is exposed to contact with victims of the disease, even in its early stages, may contract tuberculosis.

Proper care for tubercular patients is therefore not only a humanitarian measure but is also an act to safeguard the health of self and family.

As is also explained, the county commissioners are required to furnish medical care for tubercular cases in which the patients are unable to pay for it themselves. The simple fact is, however, that Richland county commissioners do not have the money to meet these costs and that many sufferers from tuberculosis will lack treatment—and die—unless this half-mill tax levy (50 cents on each $1,000 of real estate tax valuation) is passed.

Do not overlook the small ballot on which this issue appears. Vote FOR the one-half mill tax levy and you will be voting to save human lives and restore health to many unfortunate adults and children in Richland county—possibly a friend or neighbor among them.

Remedy for Radicalism.

PEOPLE who think the country is going politically and economically haywire should be interested in a statement by Frederick C. Crawford, vice president of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Crawford, as might be guessed, is a conservative. But in addressing a national group of investment bankers, he departs widely from the normal conservative attitude.

The way to smash all dangerous "isms," he says, is to put people back to work and run the country's industrial machine full blast, regardless of "regulation and obstruction." Radicalism will vanish as prosperity returns.

"The factories of America are half obsolete," he tells the bankers. "Forget criticism. Renew your faith in American industry. Invent new ways to keep up this flow of capital to industry. If laws hinder, get them changed. Forget your old methods. Focus your attention on the quality of management, which is all that counts today."

He would like to see the political situation changed, he says, but this is difficult to accomplish directly, because people in distress have never turned from left to right. "We have had the cart before the horse. We have forgotten that only a prosperous America can be a conservative America."

Another Slice for Hitler.

SINCE Hitler's Czech coup, people everywhere have been wondering what his next move would be. It is taken for granted that as soon as he has "consolidated his gains" he will start again on the road of conquest, peacefully if he can, but using force if necessary.

Writing in the magazine Ken, Ladislas Farago maintains that Hitler intends pushing on into Russia, to grab a large slice of the rich Ukraine grain fields, in 1940. Everybody has known that the Nazis covet that region, and it is laid down in "Mein Kampf" as one of the important conquests required for the Nazi empire. Most onlookers, though, expect that Hitler will do more mopping up in southeastern Europe before he tackles that job.

The tip-off writer tells of a special military organization already prepared under the direction of a renegade Russian general, to plan the Ukraine invasion. If he is right, it looks to an outsider as though Stalin and his associates had better stop their executions and unify their own people against the testing time.

Active New England.

THE New England council and the engineering societies, following a joint survey of the major industries of that region, report surprising progress in a modernization program which has been under way there since the latter part of 1936 and which is to be continued, and perhaps increased, in 1939. The industries represented include metal products, textiles, machinery, paper, woolens, furniture, printing, food products, shoes, chemicals and granite.

Sums spent ranged from $1,000 to more than $1,000,000. The money went for new machinery, new plants, re-designing products to meet competition additional equipment, water-softening and filtration plants, replacing obsolete machinery, and so on.

Manufacturers who have been carrying on this work are so pleased with results that others are expected to follow their example.

Mention is being made of the peculiar case of a Chicago schoolboy who sees everything upside down. No attention is paid to people who merely think that way.

Premier Chamberlain says he will go to Munich again to see Hitler, and the world wonders what he's going to give away this time.

It is rather discouraging to think that the outcome of an election may be decided by those who "boo" at a political meeting.

Admitted to the union in 1850, California is among the younger states—which may account for some of its younger ideas.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Did you know that:

Your tonsils can be toasted out?

That short wave radio treatments can cure gonorrhea, paresis, relieve many types of arthritis, colds and some types of skin eruptions?

That you can be thoroughly exercised physically on a hospital cot?

It comes under the head of physio-therapy, which was given impetus by the World war and now medical men are simply captivated by it.

An exhibit of the various mechanisms for performing the treatments came to Washington and we looked it over. Strangely, the most important phases are simply advancement of two of mother's old remedies. Hot water bottles, hot baths, and massage.

* * *

How to Raise a Fever.

BUT the old fireside systems won't turn the trick. Masses of hot water bottles can be applied until the skin burns without materially benefiting arthritis. Here is the new principle. Some disease bacteria, such as cause gonorrhea, begin to die off when body temperature reaches 106 to 107 degrees. The newfangled processes simply produce an artificial fever. The treatment is called fever-therapy.

A spray bath or vapor bath at a temperature of about 110 degrees, applied for an hour or so will bring an artificial temperature of 106 or above and hold it there as long as the physician decides is wise or necessary. It may be two hours; it may be as much at 12. At the end of that time you may be cured of an infection of gonorrhea. Cures may come after treatments in other ailments.

It isn't quackery. Mayo Institute uses it, as do Johns Hopkins, Walter Reed hospital in Washington, and other major hospitals.

* * *

Enter the Radio.

BUT there is another way of doing the same thing. It was discovered that short wave radio waves poured through the body will also bring up the temperature. Dr. Harvey Cushing, famous Boston brain surgeon and father-in-law of Jimmy Roosevelt, was a pioneer in the experiment.

The radio system has special advantages. It can be applied to particular spots, such as shoulders, legs, or face to raise the temperature through the affected area. We tried the radio system on our own manly chest and could feel the warmth clean through to the coat lining in the back. It reaches deeply lying muscular infections and bone bruises. Colleges are buying the machines to repair battered football players.

* * *

The Electric Knife.

ANOTHER thing, an electric scalpel for performing operations and sealing up blood vessels cut during the process was placed in our hands. We operated on a slab of steak and it was like slicing through butter with a razor blade. An electric spark moves ahead of the needle point, cutting flesh and mildly toasting it to stop blood flowing.

Remember those electric devices in the old pool rooms on which you could get an electric shock? Well, they have perfected them to exercise people. Muscles of broken limbs can be toned up by simply touching the device to the skin in certain spots. No longer do the muscles atrophy while in splints.

Now that you know about these things don't try them on yourself without guidance of your physician. A few degrees too much fever-therapy becomes simple boiling.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

MELANCHOLY DAYS ARE HERE

Memories of 'Wet' and 'Dry' Days

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—The fact that Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, is in danger of being defeated for re-election to the senate by Robert A. Taft meets curious and varying reactions in Washington. His political career has been of unusual interest, especially since the spring of 1930.

Bulkley announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator that spring on a wringing wet platform. He demanded repeal of the 18th amendment. The whole country was inclined to be amused. The dry wave had reached its high-water mark in the preceding congressional election, when Afred E. Smith went down to such a defeat as had not previously happened to the candidate of a major party in this country, though it was to be surpassed by the Republican party in the ensuing presidential election, and then surpassed again four years later.

Herbert Hoover's "dry" sweep of the country in 1928 had resulted in the election of a dry Republican senator from Maryland, a dry Republican congressman from the Norfolk-Portsmouth district in Virginia. In the midst of the Ohio primary Henry H. Curran, then president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, was examined by the senate lobby committee. In a long series of questions and forced answers as to individual campaigns in the preceding election, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, often called the greatest senatorial inquisitor of all time, sought to compel Curran to admit that his association was merely wasting the money of its contributors in a hopeless fight to obtain legal liquor.

* * *

BUT this was only part of the story. Ohio was the birthplace of the Anti-Saloon League. The only spot in the state that was outstanding for its wet sentiment was Cincinnati, and this was Republican, whereas Bulkley was running in the Democratic primary!

Bulkley had the backing, in Cleveland, of Newton D. Baker, who had been Woodrow Wilson's secretary of war. Also of Benedict Crowell, who had been assistant secretary of war. Both were enthusiastic wets.

It so happened that the governor of Ohio had appointed Roscoe C. McCulloch to the senate when Senator Theodore E. Burton died. It was for the unexpired Burton term that Bulkley was running. McCulloch had voted in the senate to approve the nomination for the supreme court of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina. Parker had offended two important groups of voters, the negroes and labor, by decisions as a circuit court judge. Both groups were potent in Ohio. Further, the whole Republican ticket was in disfavor in Ohio that year because the governor himself was unpopular.

SO IT seemed in advance that Bulkley MIGHT have a chance in the election if he could only win the primary, despite the fact that Ohio had defeated one of its outstanding statesman, Senator Atlee Pomerene, only eight years before just on the suspicion of being "moist."

But there was an even more important factor, not then realized. The death of Wayne B. Wheeler had left the Anti-Saloon League without political brains of any moment. The once dominating dry organization did nothing to prevent the candidacy in the primary against Bulkley of TWO avowed drys: Bulkley won the primary, and then the election. It was the turning of the tide. It was one of the guiding beacons which resulted in the Republican party going "moist" at its next national convention, and the Democratic party going all the way wet.

In the Senate Bulkley became for a while a sort of left bower for Senator Carter Glass. There are many who think that had he stayed with that group, instead of being weaned away by President Roosevelt, he would not be in danger today.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

The A. F. L. Speaks.

By ERIK M. ERIKSSON
(Professor of History, University of Southern California.)

A FEW weeks ago, at Houston, Texas, the American Federation of Labor concluded its fifty-eighth annual convention. Including as it does over three million workers organized in the form of craft unions, this labor organization commands public attention when it speaks. In view of its two year fight with the radical C. I. O., there was more than ordinary interest manifested in the recent convention. This interest was greatly increased when the President of the United States sent a message to the convention urging that labor cease its internal warfare and that the government, labor and industry co-operate for the common good.

Following the receipt of this message, Daniel Tobin, President of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, demanded in a fiery address before the convention, that peace be made with the CIO in order that labor might present a united front. In spite of this demand and Mr. Roosevelt's plea, the convention overwhelmly voted not to compromise with "dictatorship or communistic leadership." A resolution adopted with only one dissenting vote called for the ouster or resignation of John L. Lewis as the head of the C. I. O. as the price of peace in the ranks of labor. To this resolution Mr. Lewis replied that he would resign if William Green would likewise resign as head of the A. F. L. This Mr. Green showed no inclination to do.

In the light of these developments it appears that the country will continue to be plagued by jurisdictional disputes between A. F. L. and the C. I. O. which have done so much to promote the economic dislocation of the past two years. Too much blame should not be placed on the A. F. L. for this situation, however. It must be remembered that the organization attempted some months ago to make peace with the C. I. O. but without success. Opposed as it is and always has been to communism and extreme radicalism the A. F. L. can hardly be expected to yield to the C. I. O. which has been dominated by radicals. Nevertheless, it would be in the public interest and to the advantage of industry and labor itself if some basis for peace between these two powerful labor organizations could be found.

Another matter which received attention in the A. F. L. convention was the National Labor Relations Act. This, of course, was expected. When the act was passed in 1935, William Green hailed it as "Labor's Magna Carta." But, as the months have passed, the A. F. L. leadership has become more and more disappointed with the legislation. Mr. Green and his colleagues have come to the conclusion that the National Labor Relations Board is an ally of the C. I. O.," and they have not hesitated to say so. This explains the action of the convention in demanding nine changes in the act.

The fact that the A. F. L. has finally come to the point where it is ready to fight for changes in the Labor Relations Act is of great significance. Naturally, what this organization wants is a law which will favor its members. In order to get what it wants support will have to be secured from congressmen who are not particularly friendly to the A. F. L. Under these circumstances it might be possible during the forthcoming session of Congress to secure additional amendments which will eliminate its one-sidedness and make it a law which will be truly American in character. The public, the employers and the minority of the workers, whether members of a union or not, are entitled to the protection of the law just as much as union members affiliated with either the A. F. L. or C. I. O.

Actions taken in relation to other matters by the convention indicated that the relations between the A. F. L. and the government at Washington are not as cordial as they have been. At present the organization is at best a lukewarm ally of the New Deal.

A Farmer's Diary

Taken for a Ride.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY FRIEND overtook me in his ancient Model T. "Get in," he said. "It's transportation. It gets you there and it brings you back. Ever own one?"

"Five—and a truck," I told him. "The first one I had was in 1913—the second automobile in our neighborhood. The springs were stiff in all cars in those days, the bodies were perched high, and the upholstery was none too soft."

"I know—they were funny looking."

"And some funny things happened. I'll never forget the time I took a carpenter out to look over some work I planned to have him do. We drove along a narrow, gravel byway. A week before a heavy rain had washed six even ditches across the road. I was not driving fast, but the momentum of the car was too great, and the time too short to see the danger ahead."

He chuckled. "I can guess what happened."

"When the front wheels dropped into the first ditch and rose to the crest of the second, my carpenter went bouncing to the top. The wheel saved me the first hard jolt. The bow above our heads was seasoned hickory, and sharp edged. The carpenter struck it with a thud that knocked his derby flatter than a pancake.

"He started back toward the seat. Just then the front wheels hit the second ditch and the cushions met him coming down and boosted him back up again. Five times I saw that carpenter fly back and forth as though he were a shuttle. On the last upward plunge, he missed the bow, and his battered head broke through the top.

"I had clung to the heavy wooden steering wheel until my hands were blistered, but only once, on the rebound from that last ditch, did my head graze the bow above. When I could stop the car I had to laugh. It made the carpenter very angry. He suggested, with strong language, that he had no further desire to go anywhere with me, or to see the work I wanted done. I took him to a doctor, who took eight stitches in his smooth bald head and bandaged it completely.

"Did he get over it?" inquired my companion.

"Oh, yes—we often laughed together since, over the incident.

Listen, World!

Disc—raged? Look at a Seed.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SEEDS fascinate me. They do something to me—. I like to have seeds around, especially the diminutive ones—those infinitesmal specks which break into rainbow tides of poppies, lupine, marigold and mignonette. I have a place in my desk where I keep them, near at hand, so I may find them easily when the need comes.

What human need can a seed fill? You'd be surprised! As a matter of fact, you know the need as well as I—though you've probably never used seeds to cure it. For you, too, must have those empty, doubting days—

Days when nothing happens in your heart or head except a dull and weary wonder what it's all about and why you're here. And you look at yourself with sick, disgusted eyes, remembering the bright years before the doubts began.

Those radiant first years when everything was important . . . when everything was exciting . . . when you believed in yourself with shining, unscarred confidence. What great things you were going to do! What a wonderful person you were going to be! So good, so brave, so invincible! Nothing would ever stop YOU! Nothing would ever turn YOU into one of those stupid, dreary old flops, such as you saw around you. No—YOU were going to make all the fairy tales come true . . . kill all the dragons . . . rescue the Sleeping Beauty!

Gallant, gay young years! And never for a second did you doubt your own power to do it all . . . or never for an instant lose that sense of your own secret, wonderful power. But now—

It's all so different, now. Everything's so stale . . . so meaningless . . . your own self, most of all. How could you ever imagine that YOU were cut out for great adventures . . . that YOUR heart held songs and sunrises and magic beyond all counting!

* * *

HOW do I know you say these things? Because everybody says these things. Those empty days, those doubting days, come to us all. That's why I keep my seeds—they hold the answer to that emptiness. They hold the healing of that doubt. They give me back MYSELF.

How? Very simply. When the words begin to falter and my heart begins to lag and I know the black mood is on, I reach into my desk and take out those seeds and spill them into my hand . . .

Such little things, those seeds. So insignificant. Dumb, drab trifles with no outward sign of wonder or delight. Yet, think of all they hold!

Look at this poppy seed—a black speck smaller than the tiniest pin head. But in that speck there waits a marvel of living loveliness! A thrusting plant that rises to my knee. Proud stalk all set with fluttering pennants of soft satin leaves. And, in that stalk, the cells that store up food . . . and all the complicated tools for serving poppy life. And, at one end, a web of thrusting roots . . . and at the other, like a tossing flame, great glowing blooms with scarlet petals thin as crinkled silk . . . about a heart that holds the miracle of life!

Think of it—all that within a seed so tiny it can hardly be measured; an insignificant seed that is thrown about at the mercy of wind and rain. All that in a seed . . . pound of tissue . . . square yards of petal and leaf . . . concentrated essences of fragrance and color . . . and, most magic of all, that secret plan which God alone can trace—the mystery of life. All in a seed.

And yet you despair about yourself! You feel that you "don't amount to anything!"

How do you know what you amount to? If a seed can hold such wonders, what marvels may not be hidden in a man! What endless beauty and power may you not unfold . . . you who are just another greater seed! You believe in that seed, don't you? Then believe in yourself!

BELIEVE IN YOUR OWN MYSTERY . . . AND IN YOUR OWN SECRET MEANING . . . IN YOUR OWN HIDDEN GLORY! BELIEVE . . . AND BE GLAD . . . AND GET GOING!

There's the cure for any doubting day . . . any empty life!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Somebody at the meeting of the Society of American Magicians came up with the suggestion that Black Cat day be set aside each year in honor of the late Harry Houdini, and I am all in favor of the idea.

Black Cat day, of course, is Halloween, and it was just 12 years ago on Halloween that Houdini died. Twelve years can bring great change in many phases of life, but the Houdini influence is probably stronger today than it ever was. Twenty-eight magic societies have pledged themselves to support the annual Houdini day idea, and the only contention is whether it shall be known as Houdini day or simply National Magic day.

Anyway, the magic boys on Halloween will invade the hospitals, orphanages, children's homes and schools, displaying their sleight-of-hand gratis to one and all. On that day at least they aren't going to slight anybody.

* * *

WHICH reminds us of the time Paul Duke was playing a theater in a Pennsylvania tank town, and his act wasn't going over so well. His ledgerdemain somehow just wasn't coming off, and the audience, becoming restive, began tossing little verbal brickbats at the harassed magician.

"So you're a magician!" boomed a scornful voice in the audience. . . . "Yes, I am, and what do you want to make of it!" Duke screamed back.

Incidentally, Chester Morris turned up at a meeting of the American Magicians on a recent visit to New York and showed himself to be quite adept at the magic trade. He gives a lot of his time to it on the coast, and so does Harold Lloyd, the film comedian.

Timely Editorial

Yes, We All Pay.

Not government, but economic enterprise, has provided the money for relief—90 billion dollars since 1930—Lammot du Pont, internationally known industrialist, tells the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

It is true, as Mr. du Pont says, that economic enterprise finances, chiefly, the WPA, the CCC, the HOLC, the AAA and all the rest of the alphabetical services.

Economic enterprise is the big income taxpayer, but Mr. du Pont well might have gone one step further back in research. Economic enterprise must get the million and billions, which it pays into the federal treasury, dollar by dollar by cutting wages of workers or increasing prices.

In the last analysis it must appear that every person in the United States except wards of the public and people on some form of relief, has been assessed and will be assessed to pay the cost of the depression.—Toledo Blade.

STRIKE ENDED AT MIDDLETOWN

gates were reopened for the first time since Oct. 25, when an attempt to resume operations resulted in an outbreak of violence.

'Few' Supporters.

Governor Davey issued a statement later at Columbus in which he said calling off of the strike demonstrated:

That it was an admission that Lewis had only a small per cent of the employes in the Tobacco Workers Union; and

That Lewis "cannot operate when the state government stands for law and order."

The governor said that if a large majority of the plant employes had been enthusiastic CIO members, "it would not make any difference how many troops were in town; the plant could reopen, and so many would remain away from work that it could not operate."

However, he added, "Mr. Lewis was afraid to let the plant reopen under protection of the law because most of the employes would have gone back to work with a song of joy in their hearts."

The governor said the strike cost Middletown workers nearly $150,000.

He accused Philip Phillips, regional director of the National Labor Relations board, of "attempting to use the power of the federal government to force these unwilling employes to become the dues-paying slaves of John Lewis." Phillips, he asserted, declined to hold an election to determine the majority of employes desiring to belong to the union.

Charging again that "the only weapons which John Lewis has for use in his industrial warfare are intimidation, violence, bloodshed if necessary, lawlessness and the National Labor board," Davey declared that the labor leader "hopes to have his own way without interference from the state after the first of the year."

Members of the union, who struck for a closed shop and a checkoff, voted shortly before last midnight to end the dispute and return to work, as the troops were en route from Columbus, Delaware and Washington Court House.

The union acted at the request of CIO regional directors Paul Fuller of Cincinnati and John Owens of Columbus to call off the strike. Fuller said he would file charges with the National Labor Relations Board.

CIO Organizer Sam Sponseller announced that the union vote to end the strike was 577 to 1. He said strikers were instructed to return home and report for work at 8 a. m.

Pickets who had left entrances of the plant to attend the meeting, called to act on the request of Fuller and Owens, did not return to their posts.

Later a large crowd milled about a railroad station near the plant, to watch guardsmen. Brig Gen. Frank D. Henderson, in command, said the troops would remain on duty despite the union's action.

Fuller expressed great relief when informed that the strike had been ended and asserted that the union now had 700 members and was "getting stronger."

Philip G. Phillips, regional director of the NLRB at Cincinnati, also expressed pleasure over the outcome and asserted that it was "the only thing to do."

Harpring declared that "there will be no discrimination against any of the workers, regardless of their organization affiliation."

Owens, in a statement as president of the CIO Ohio industrial union council, described the order calling out troops as "the most inexcusable of the many vicious acts by Governor Davey during his term in office."

See Blood Stains.

Police said stains apparently made by blood had been found on a coal chute leading to the cellar. They also announced discovery of a secret room adjoining the basement and expressed belief it might have been used as a gangland execution chamber.

Lieut. Thomas Curley reported finding a machine gun hidden in the room and said walls of the chamber were marked by about 15 holes seemingly made by bullets.

In a second hidden room, Lieut. Curley said, a box containing a number of counterfeit federal revenue stamps and liquor bottle labels had been discovered.

As the search progressed, Assistant District Attorney Jacob J. Rosenblum continued a steady questioning of the three men—Demetrius Gula, 30, a pinball operator, John Virga, 34, a clothes presser, and William Jacknis, a WPA playground instructor accused of serving as the "finger man" for the gang

Face Double Charges.

Rosenblum said the men would be held on double kidnap charges in two other abductions but that no action would be taken against them in the Fried case pending completion of the police basement search and a laboratory analysis of the bones.

Benjamin Farber, 33, a Brooklyn coal dealer who Hoover said paid $1,900 for his release after the gang abducted him last April 18, expressed surprise at the detention of Jacknis.

Farber said that when members of the gang had asked him to name an intermediary, he had suggested Jacknis as "one of my pals."

G-men said, however, that his erstwhile friend was the one who betrayed Farber to the syndicate as a potential victim.

The other Brooklyn kidnaping to which Hoover said "certain ones" of the quartet had confessed was the abduction of Norman Miller, 19, for whose release his father, head of a stevedoring concern, paid $13,000.

Legion Unit to Play Before Showing of Scout-Sponsored Picture.

Boy Scouts of Troop 16, who are selling advance tickets for the Madison picture "Sons of the Legion," will receive support Friday night from the American Legion Drum corps of McVey post when that group rallies in front of the theater to play several numbers, and later appears on the stage.

Farm Bureau Also Endorses 4-Year Term for State Officials at Meeting.

Resolutions recommending the establishing of a bi-partisan board to head the state highway department, four-year terms for all state officials and the administration of relief by local governing bodies were passed last night by the Richland county farm bureau at its annual meeting.

The organization also went on record as favoring the continuance of the federal soil conservation program, a 3½ per cent interest rate for farm mortgages, and retention of the 65 per cent majority required to pass real estate levies and bond issues.

Opposes One-House Plan.

The group opposed the adoption of an unicameral (one house) legislature in Ohio and the licensing of gambling devices as a source of state revenue. Members favored a personal income tax instead of an increase in real estate tax.

Another resolution passed by the group calls for the development of cooperative hospitalization and health associations.

The county resolutions will be submitted to the state farm bureau at the annual convention in Columbus in two weeks.

Smith Re-elected.

Mrs. Clarence Griebling of Troy township and Mrs. George Barnes of Jackson township were elected directors.

Robinson reported that the dollar volume of the county farm bureau's business dropped off 30 per cent during the past year. He attributed the decrease to the reduced price of farm commodities and the taking over of the farm bureau's egg business by the cooperative creamery at Shelby.

Robinson said stock in the organization had increased from $40,820 to $44,890 during the past year.

C. C. Bair, of the state farm bureau, Columbus, urged the cooperative purchasing of commodities as a means of solving the nation's economic problems.

Nearly 300 members of the farm organization attended the meeting which was held in the basement of the First M. E. church, Mansfield.

NEW FORD V-8 CARS for 1939

GREATER VALUE for every motorist has been built into the two new Ford V-8 cars for 1939. They further express the forward-looking policy of the Ford Motor Company—traditional Ford dependability and economy plus progressive engineering.

Each car is distinctive in design, yet each has something of the fine streamlining of the Lincoln-Zephyr—recognized style leader for the industry. Interior appointments are in keeping with outward beauty. Every detail is styled for good taste and good service.

Both are big, roomy cars, equipped with hydraulic brakes and powered with the V-8 engine that gives you so much extra smoothness. This year the quiet performance of the V-8 engine has been matched by the new quiet built into every part of the car.

The 1939 Ford cars bring you greater riding ease on every road. New seat construction, flexible transverse springs, and big hydraulic shock absorbers provide triple-cushioned riding comfort.

Both 1939 Ford cars are Ford-priced for greater dollar value. Both bring new meaning to the Ford phrase, "The Quality Car in the Low-price Field."

WE SAY OLD QUAKER BEST WAY TO SAVE MONEY ON WHISKEY

960 Out of 1,000 Men—in Dramatic Survey—Confirmed Our Belief that OLD QUAKER, Now 3 Years Old, is an Amazing Bargain!

You'll welcome this news! You can save money on whiskey without cutting corners on quality. Why do we say so? Because the judgment of 960 out of 1,000 men is that Old Quaker—now 3 years old—is a mild, ripe, full-bodied whiskey. But—we call your attention to the fact that Old Quaker sells at an amazing low price.

We actually sought out 1,000 men—from 22 states—asked them to try Old Quaker and give us their unbiased opinion. "Smell it!", we said. "Taste it! Swallow a drink of it! Then tell us what you think!"

Not one of these men knew the name, age or price of the whiskey he was trying. Yet 960 praised its smoothness, mellowness, mildness. So again, we say:—Look at Old Quaker's rock-bottom price.

What This Means To You

If these 960 out of 1,000 men are right, then Old Quaker has got something you want! It's got fine quality at a low price! Make this same, simple trial yourself! Convince yourself that Old Quaker is good news for every thrifty drinker!

"It's mild—that's what I like about it," says Dan J. Negas, Atlanta Hotel Man, of Old Quaker.

ENROLLMENT IN WPA EDUCATION CLASSES SOARS

500 Adults Registered Here in Various Courses, Double September Total.

Enrollment in WPA-sponsored adult education classes in Mansfield has increased to nearly 500, double the enrollment when classes were started early in September, leaders in the movement reported today.

The courses, which are free to the public and include instruction for persons seeking citizenship, the blind, and colored residents, are conducted five days a week at locations throughout the city.

Registrations for the classes, which have been set up under the leadership of Mrs. Anne Wilson, district education supervisor for WPA, are received at the WPA education office in the basement of the West First Street school from 10 a. m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p. m., or following the classes at schools, the Salvation Army and the Friendly House.

Conduct Citizen Classes.

Classes in citizenship are conducted by Mrs. Rebecca Adams and Floyd Mumaw Monday and Friday afternoons at the Friendly House; Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at the Bowman school, and from 7 to 9 p. m. from Monday through Friday at the Newman school.

Under the leadership of Jack Middlebrook and Silas Robinson, classes for colored residents are held from 1 to 3:30 p. m. Tuesday and Thursday at 100 Lewis avenue; and from 7 to 9:30 p. m. from Monday through Thursday at 266 North Franklin avenue.

Classes for the blind are conducted from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. Thursday at the Salvation Army hall. They are in charge of Mrs. Adams, Middlebrook and Mrs. Virginia Hall.

Grace Lyon, a registered Red Cross nurse, is in charge of instruction in home hygiene and child psychology, while typing and shorthand classes for the county's unemployed are conducted by Mrs. Ellen Robinson.

Courses in business administration, business law, salesmanship and public speaking are held four nights a week at the Bowman school by James Gordon.

STORY HOUR

First of Series for Children Opens at Library Saturday.

The first of a series of Children's Story Hours at the Public library will be held at 9:30 a. m. Saturday.

Miss Margaret Draper, children's librarian, will be in charge of the story hour which is open to any child.

Saturday morning certificates and books will be awarded to those who completed the summer reading course. The following will receive books for completing their third year's reading:

Mary Anna Bogan, Carolyn Mae Cline, Julia Colby, Ruth M. Damron, Pearl Daniels, Richard Kessel, Malissa Knuckles, Warren Redhair, Doris Scisinger and Marjorie Wentz.

Thirty-eight children will receive certificates for the past summer's work. Janice Epley and Patricia Hieber, will be honored for completing their sixth year, and Betty Morey and Eileen Pearce for completing their fourth year of summer reading.

62 Years of Wedded Life on Same Farm Record of Richland Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Remember Civil War, Lincoln's Death.

(Editor's Note: Calvin A. Byers, author of "The Farmer's Diary" which appears daily in The News-Journal, writes today about his aged neighbors who have observed their 62nd wedding anniversary.)

By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT IS a rare distinction to have lived 75 years on the same farm. It is equally rare to have spent 62 years of wedded life in the same location.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Campbell who live north of Lexington, celebrated their 62nd wedding anniversary last week in the farm home that has been his since he moved there with his parents in 1863, as an 11-year-old lad. Mr. Campbell is 85 and his wife 83.

"What are your early recollections of those days?" I asked him.

"It was right in Civil war time. All the able bodied men had left the farms. Soldiers were drilling in Mansfield. I remember Lincoln's election, both times, and I was in town to see the street parades given by the Wide Awakes. They marched, each man with a lantern swinging high at the end of a long pole."

* * *

"Do you remember Lincoln's assassination?" I asked.

"I know he does," said his wife quickly, "for I do, myself."

"And where did you live?"

"I lived just up the valley half a mile." She smiled. "My grandfather came there from England in 1830. They came in the winter—a three months voyage in those days of sailing ships. I've heard tell how they stopped with friends in Mansfield, and hunted for a farm. They heard of the one out here. It was one of those wet slushy days in March. They walked out, all the six miles. Grandmother's skirts were wet above her knees. She prayed that if they were to have this farm the man would come to meet them. When they came within sight of the cabin, the owner walked out the lane and opened the gate.

"They were welcomed in and a huge log was rolled into the big fireplace. The woman loaned grandmother some dry clothing, and when they had bought the farm and were ready to go, the farmer took them back to town with his ox team."

* * *

"You taught school, didn't you?" I said to the old man.

"I taught five terms. The first was 25 miles from home. I rode a colt to my boarding place, and came home every week-end."

"Every week-end," I repeated. Mrs. Campbell smiled.

"They used to tease us about each other when we were very young," she admitted.

"And how long were you courting?" I asked.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Campbell are shown at their home north of Lexington where they have lived all their married life—62 years, and where they observed their 62nd wedding anniversary last week. Mr. Campbell's residence on this same farm goes back even farther, since he was a boy of 11.

The old man scratched his head, good humoredly. "I'll have to figure out that one. Well—she was twenty right soon after we were married. I guess I must have been goin' up there for five years or more."

They showed me the quaint, old-fashioned marriage certificate, framed in hand-carved walnut. Their names, Lewis G. Campbell and Laura J. Miller, were written in faded ink below the portraits of a fine looking young man and a slim, vivacious girl. The date was Oct. 18, 1876.

"We went to the Philadelphia centennial on our honeymoon trip," Mr. Campbell recollected. "We traveled most of the way there and back in the night — didn't see any of the country either going or coming. I'd never do that again," he added, chuckling.

"We had to get back, for his school began the first of November," his wife explained. "I had been teaching, too, and was rehired at what was a handsome wage for a woman, then. They gave me $40 a month—but I had to quit when I married."

* * *

They still live in the house in which they began housekeeping. After the first nine years they moved into a large brick home, which they built on the adjacent lawn. For forty years the brick house was their home. Their three children were born and reared there. When Mr. Campbell retired from active farming, 13 years ago, they moved back into the old house again.

Here I found them, the other evening after supper. He was reading the evening paper to her, while she knitted. A huge tiger cat arched his back and rubbed against the old man's knees, or tangled his paws in the old lady's many-hued ball of yarn.

"How have you kept from getting old?" I asked them.

"Nobody around the country has been any busier than we've been," said he. "Of course I can't do what I used to, but I like to work. I'm going to quit cutting corn before long, though. I've only cut a hundred shocks this year."

"Lewis does real well," interposed his wife. "Last year he cut forty cords of wood. We have a big lawn to tend, and his garden always produced more than we can use. This week he's been painting [illegible] woodwork."

As she talked her fingers flew. She is an expert needlewoman, and just now is piecing an intricate applique quilt for one of her great-granddaughters.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

ASHLAND SEES G. O. P. STATE TICKET GAINING

State Representative, County Commissioner, Auditor in Spirited Races.

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of stories summarizing the political campaigns in counties in the immediate Richland county area.)

ASHLAND — Normally Democratic Ashland county is expected to swing an unusually heavy vote into the Republican column largely because of the John W. Bricker-Charles Sawyer gubernatorial race and the race between Robert A. Taft and Senator Robert J. Bulkley for U. S. senator.

A Scripps-Howard newspaper "cross-the-state" poll has indicated a victory for the Republican state and national tickets in Ashland county.

Taft, Republican nominee for senator, has an indicated majority in the county of 1,217 and Bricker, Republican candidate for governor, has a projected lead of 669, the poll indicated.

In Loudonville, Democratic candidates polled majorities but Ashland city and rural areas are Republican, the poll showed.

Two Dems Lead.

Two Democratic state candidates, Secretary of State William J. Kennedy and State Treasurer Clarence Knisley, were given majorities in the Scripps-Howard figures.

Sentiment here rates the contest between William A. Ashbrook and Walter B. Woodward for 17th district congressman, as one of the closest in the county. An unusually large Townsend vote is expected for Woodward, running as a Republican-Townsend advocate. Ashbrook, Democratic incumbent, has publicly condemned the Townsend pension plan.

Other expected close races will be the contests for representative to the general assembly, county commissioner and county auditor.

Guy B. Murray is seeking re-election as state representative on the Democratic ticket with J. R Church as the Republican candidate.

The county auditor race will be between F. E. Wicks, incumbent, and T. O. Deibler, Republican candidate.

Another race of local interest will be that of H. E. Culbertson former Ashland county prosecutor, who is running for election as Common Pleas Court judge, supported by the Democratic party and C. W. Chorpening, present police judge, seeking election for the Common Pleas office and supported by the Republicans.

SLAYS HUSBAND

DAYTON—(AP)—Joseph Augustine, 33, of Chattanooga, Pa., was shot to death in his temporary apartment here today in what Detective Inspector E. L. McElhaney said was a quarrel with Mrs. Augustine.

The officer said that the woman, arrested following the shooting, told him she fired three times when her husband struck her in a fight.

Cleveland Police Killer Pins Last Hope on Davey.

Ferrito was convicted of participating in the fatal shooting of Policemen Virgil Bayne and Gerald Bode as the officers sought to question five youths at a gasoline station there last Dec. 18.

sion for retired workers, will pay $200 to anyone for just the mere fact of being old," Biddle said.

"I'm not condemning the plan," Biddle asserted, "but social security legislation which we have inaugurated is the answer.

"We must, however, amplify and broaden the program to protect it against being destroyed by the opposition who seeks to tear down all that has been set up."

Biddle declared that the promises of $200 a month were promises that could not be fulfilled," and that the aged were only being deceived by supporters of the plan.

Support of the party's candidates was urged by Mayor Claude M. Hunter and John Correll, president of the Richland county Young Democratic club.

Brief talks also were given by Ralph C. Lutz, county representative; C. L. Mitchell, county commissioner, and County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, all candidates for re-election. The meeting was in charge of Atty. Elmer Kroger.

Appearing on the same program with Congressman Ashbrook at Shelby tonight will be T. J. Duffy, former chairman of the Industrial commission of Ohio, who will speak on behalf of the Democratic ticket.

In Mansfield, a First ward meeting will be held at the Prospect park pavilion and a Fourth ward rally at the Bowman Street school. Both are scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

Speakers at the First ward meeting will be Mayor Hunter and County Prosecutor Glenn W Marriott, while Atty. C. H. Henkel and John Correll will address the Fourth ward rally.

W. J. Rogers representing the state treasurer's office will address the meeting which will be in charge of William Lawton, president of the club. A fish fry will follow.

GERMAN GROUPS FROLIC AT PARK

Central Powers War Vets Sponsor Celebration Saturday.

A celebration that will be a cross between a Mardi Gras, a Halloween and Thanksgiving day observation, will be held at the German Benefit Union park, north of Mansfield, Saturday.

It will be a Kirchweihe celebration and will be sponsored by the Central Powers World War Veterans association. The event is an old world custom, held annually, and marks the anniversary of the building of the village church.

Folk dances of the German states will be featured and there will be a bake sale of pastries made by housewives with vocal music by the Liederkranz.

SAYS BRICKER HAS 'RUN OUT'

Their joint complaint charged that coercion was being used on WPA workers, that workers talked openly and willingly about it, but were unwilling to make sworn affidavits unless they were assured that they would not lose their jobs. They said "politically harassed workers" have been told that they will have a holiday on election day and that they must work at the polls and vote the "Democratic ticket."

In Washington it was announced today that more than 200 Republican senators, representatives and congressional candidates have pledged themselves not to "play politics with human misery".

Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio WPA administrator, has repeatedly denied that political pressure on WPA workers was permitted. Bulletins have been sent to each WPA project assuring workers they may vote for whom they please without fear of losing their jobs.

In Washington Senator Sheppard said he had received a letter from Senator Robert J. Bulkley, who is seeking re-election and opposes Taft for the same office, in which the Ohio senator said he disagreed with the investigating committee's views that contributions to a campaign committee by federal officials were contrary to law. The committee had previously found that 50 federal office holders had contributed to Bulkley's campaign.

The committee also announced that it found no evidence that expenditures for Taft were greater than he and his committee had reported.

An attack from a new source was made on Bricker this week when a group, designating itself as a Democratic World War Veterans, sent out thousands of letters to veterans all over the state, attacking Bricker's war record. He served as a chaplain at a United States cantonment.

Sawyer enlisted and served overseas. Hundreds of the letters came into Mansfield yesterday.

"Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned," the saying goes—and Mansfield police are wont to believe it, especially if it involves the woman's husband.

The officers learned this last night when they were called to a Lily street address when a woman all but wrecked a neighbor's house because her husband wouldn't come home.

Police said the woman, bent on wreaking vengeance on her neighbor when her husband wouldn't accompany her, had already broken in a rear door and ripped the telephone line from the house when they arrived.

After she agreed to pay the damages and her husband agreed to accompany her home to avert any further destruction, police left. No charges were filed.

AVIATOR KILLED

Navy Flier Dies When Planes Crash In Mid-Air.

PENSACOLA, Fla.— (INS) —An investigation was begun here today into the mid-air collision of two naval planes in which one of the pilots was killed when his parachute failed to open.

The victim was L. J. Lawrence of Harrisburg, Pa., a machinist's mate. He plunged 500 feet to his death when the lines of his chute apparently became tangled and kept it from opening.

TOBACCO-CHEWING CHILD-WIFE OF 12 STICKS TO HUSBAND, 60

(By United Press)

ASHLAND, Ky. — Authorities said today that grade school records of Ruth Creech Howard, tobacco-chewing child-wife of Ailburn Howard, 60, showed the girl to be only 12 years old—two years less than the legal marriage age in Kentucky.

Ruth, held in the Cattlettsburg jail on a juvenile delinquency charge, told officers that she thought she was 14.

"That's what my mammy said I was," she said.

County Attorney Clayton Smoot and Sheriff E. K. Rose said that further charges might be filed against Howard, now at liberty under $1,000 bond on a sodomy charge.

Ruth told reporters that Howard gave her "the best home I ever had." They were married in Ironton, Ohio, last April 11.

Joe Newt Gentry, the child's step-father, was held on a charge of "detaining the child against her will with intent to have her married to another." Leander Adkins was sought by officers on an abduction charge.

PRESTONBURG, Ky.—(INS)—For love of his 10-year-old bride, a raw-boned Kentucky mountaineer today vowed he would rather die than live a life apart.

Told the crime carried the death penalty as the maximum punishment in Kentucky, Tackett stormed:

"I don't care. I'd ruther die if they keep me from my Rosie. I sure loves her and she loves me, too."

Although authorities said there was not the slightest chance Tackett would be given more than a jail sentence, they were determined to keep the couple apart, at least until the girl is of legal age.

She was committed to a state orphanage yesterday.

Victor Watson, News Executive, Killed In Hotel Drop.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Victor Watson, 58, for many years an editor and executive in the Hearst newspaper organization, plunged to his death today from an 11th floor window of the Hotel Abbey in West 51st street.

A note found in the room, for which he had registered only a few minutes before under the name of George L. Jones, of 643 N. Halstead street, Chicago, said: "God forgive me for everything."

'Y' GOES OVER TOP IN DRIVE

315 Signed in Membership Campaign, First to Reach Goal Without Extension.

A new record for membership drives at the Y. M. C. A. was set last night when the 1938 round-up, in progress for the past week, went over the top, the first time in the history of the "Y" that a membership goal was reached without extending the campaign period.

During the week, 315 members were signed, exceeding the goal by 15. Of the number, 160 are new and 155 are renewals.

"The 1938 round-up was one of the most successful membership campaigns ever conducted at the Y. M. C. A.," Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary, said.

A contest conducted between the two division of workers was won by the group headed by Rev. David N. Roller which signed 122 members. High point men in the campaign were Glenn Mochel and John Martin. Both will be given a large trophy. Division No. 2 headed by Norman L. Wolfe turned in 99 members.

Workers who earned 75 points or more were William Mabee, Harold Dysart, Howard Doner, Kent Oberlin, George John, William Huck, Harold Mansfield, Lowell Bourns and Lloyd Brown. Each will be given a small loving cup. The renewals committee was headed by Arthur Hughes.

A clean-up campaign will continue through next Monday, Remy announced to give workers a chance to complete calls on their prospect cards. Workers will continue to report to the Y. M. C. A. office each day at 5 p. m.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Returns from all the states in next week's elections naturally will be scanned minutely for "trends" that may indicate what is brewing for 1940, but those from Ohio will come in for particular attention from the practical politicians of both parties.

For Ohio is regarded by them as a barometer state, sensitive to the direction of the political winds, a state where the agricultural mid-west meets the industrialized east, thus affording a good cross-section for the purposes of political reckoning as regard the future.

Moreover, this year the outcome in Ohio is regarded as highly debatable today, five days before the balloting. It is claimed by both Democrats and Republicans as is usual at this stage, but the off-the-record statements of the leaders do not bear out their public claims.

No Roosevelt Sweep.

Two years ago, in 1936, President Roosevelt and the New Deal carried Ohio by 620,000 votes. So tremendous was the Democratic sweep that Mr. Roosevelt carried into office with him 20 of the state's 22 members of congress. That is a wholly disproportionate percentage, considering the fact that Ohio has always been considered a doubtful state as between the two major parties.

This year, Mr. Roosevelt's name is not on the ticket. The candidates for senate and house, and for the governorship, too, have to ride under their own power.

To make it even more complicated, analysis of the 1936 Ohio returns reveals that of the 22 congressmen from Ohio, ten were elected two years ago by majorities of from 1,000 to 9,000 votes. Hence it will take only the switch of a few thousand votes in these districts to oust the incumbents.

All the private, grape-vine reports the leaders are getting in Washington are to the effect that "Ohio is very close." That applies to the senatorial, gubernatorial as well as congressional contests.

The Democrats there, as elsewhere, have suffered from party dissension. Charles Sawyer, the Democratic nominee for governor, has accused Gov. Martin L. Davey, whom he defeated in the primary, with using the state machine for the benefit of his Republican opponent, John W. Bricker. Davey has been on the outs most of the time, too, with the New Deal at Washington.

The senatorial race is being watched with unusual attention, for if Robert A. Taft, son of the former president and chief justice, succeeds in knocking off Senator Robert J. Bulkley there is scant doubt that the Republicans will have a famous name to consider two years hence when it comes to choosing a presidential candidate. Ohio is the politicians' favorite hunting ground when it comes to presidential timber, as witness the number of candidates —and presidents—she has furnished in the past.

CRESTLINE—J. B. McCarter, newly-elected president of the Kiwanis, and delegate to the 21st annual district convention of Kiwanis held at Cincinnati the past week, gave a report of the convention at the regular Wednesday luncheon meeting of the club held at the Y. M. C. A.

HUNT YOUTH, 20

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) —State motor police were pressing a wide search for Sydney Errington Martin, jr., 20-year-old grandson of the late Caleb Fox, socially prominent financier, who disappeared more than seven weeks ago, it was disclosed today.

It was reported that agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation also had been called into the search for the heir to the Fox and Martin fortunes.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup Than You Can Buy

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough remedy. Instantly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

AUTHOR MIXES DRAMA IN FIGHT OF LITTLE STEEL

Upton Sinclair's Book Story of Independents' Struggle to Maintain Open Shop.

A compelling picture of labor and entrenched wealth at the crossroads in America is told in "Little Steel" by Upton Sinclair, author and more recently stormy petrel of California's political picture. The author dramatizes the independent steel companies' struggles to maintain an open shop after the capitulation of the United States Steel corporation to the CIO.

The Valleyville Steel Corporation (a fictitious name for a small company) and its president, Walter Quayle, fights the CIO and the CIO strikes. But there is drama when Quayle's daughter, Jenny, goes with her husband to live with the people of Valleyville and works for the strikers against her father.

"Little Steel" is on the new fiction list at the Public library this week. "The King Was In the Counting House" is a comedy of common sense by James Branch Cabell. It concerns the Dutchy of Melphe in Catholic Italy of the Rennaissance, but its barbed satire applies to the power politicians of today.

Novel on Revolution.

"Trumpets at Dawn," a novel of the American Revolution by Cyril Harris, presents a vast spectacle of a people in the throes of war. Its richness of characterization, romance and powerful scenes of reality places it high among novels dealing with that period of American history.

Other fiction new to the library this week is: "Wax Apple" by Ward; "And Then You Wish," Van Druten; "Blue Dragoons," Berg; "Waterway," Dark; and "Thou Art the Man," by Blaker.

The biography of Nathaniel Hawthorne's younger daughter, Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, is told by Katherine Burton in "Sorrow Built a Bridge." The book gives an intimate picture of the home life of the Hawthornes as well as a sympathetic account of the life of this remarkable woman who devoted her later life to work among poverty-stricken cancer victims, becoming religious and founding homes for these sufferers.

"Sleep" by Ray Giles is a comprehensive book for the layman which deals with the physiological and psychological aspects of sleep. Its object is to point the way to enjoy your waking hours as well as to improve your hours of sleep.

The non-fiction list includes: "Science for the Citizen," by Lancelot Hogben, author of "Mathematics for the Million"; "Fearfully and Wonderfully Made" by Bulenburg-Wiener; "Fight to Live," Ditmars; "Building a Model Railroad," Coolidge; "Babies Are Human Beings," Aldrich and Aldrich; "Drawing Trees and Foliage," Doust; "Lonely Debate," Peterson; "Rocky Road to Dublin," McManus; "Woman on Horseback," Barrett; "Edward Wilson: Nature Lover," Server; "Canadians," Wrong; "Hoover Policies," Wilbur and Hyde; "Folly of Installment Buying," Babson; "Chinatown Inside Out," Leong.

MEETS MONDAY

A meeting of the Richland County Youth Cooperative will be held at 8 p. m. Monday, at the Springfield township school at Ontario.

The evening's discussion will be on the book "Facing the Sunrise" by Ellis Cowling and will be led by Max McFarland. Following the discussion on a recreation program will be held.

Don't Be Fooled About Constipation!

Many people, when constipation hits them, just reach for the medicine shelf, dose up with a physic, and try to forget it—till the trouble comes back. And come back it usually does—more and more often—till you get at its cause.

If you eat what most people do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are just this fact causes your trouble: lack of "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.

If that's the reason for your trouble, what you need is a good dish of crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B$_1$. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars." Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BOARD SETS UP ELIGIBLE LIST

4 Assistant Janitors At Schools Pass Civil Service Exams.

An eligible list for future appointments of janitors to the city schools had been created today by the civil service commission, Atty. George Biddle, secretary, announced.

Biddle said that the four men, all assistant janitors now employed by the board of education, survived the examinations and had been notified of their grades today.

The test was conducted because the commission had no eligible list from which to make certifications to the board for appointment of janitors, Biddle explained.

Madison high school will celebrate its annual homecoming tomorrow with a dance in the gymnasium at 10 p. m., sponsored by the Girl's Athletic and "M" associations. It will follow the Madison-Loudonville football game to be played earlier in the evening.

Music for dancing will be furnished by Gene Lantz and his orchestra. Arrangements are in charge of a committee of students from both associations, headed by Al Fendrick, school athletic director.

EXPERTS DENY BEASTS CRUEL, LAUGH AT ELEPHANT'S MEMORY

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—Experts at the zoological park in Brookfield are busy disputing time-honored fables about animals. You can forget the following:

Beasts of the jungle are cruel.

In fact, name any of the popular beliefs about animals and Robert Bean, assistant director of the zoo, will give you a 2 to 1 bet that you're wrong. He and his assistants based their conclusions on observations.

The eleghant, for example, has a memory no longer than his tail. Dr. Bean cited the case of Honey, a baby elephant which was rescued from starvation in the wilds of Africa by Christoph Schulz. Schulz brought the animal to Chicago and for months nursed it along on a bottle. He was absent from town for eight months and when he returned Honey gave him the snub; didn't remember him at all.

The female elephant is reputel to breed at the age of 40 to 50, but Dr. Bean said, in reality, she breeds at 6 to 8 years.

Beasts cruel? Not all. A hungry tiger, Dr. Bean said, does away with its prey in short order, as if it had deep sympathy for the unfortunate jungle pal it is necessary to devour for sustenance. A house cat, Dr. Bean said, is more cruel in playing with a helpless mouse before eating it than the most feared jungle cat.

The lay public has one inning, though, according to experts of the zoo. A leopard really can't change its spots.

50TH CASE OF T. B. REPORTED

Another new case of tuberculosis has been added to the list of new cases of the disease discovered in Richland county this year, the report of the quarterly recheck chest clinic held at the General hospital under the direction of Dr. T. L. Bliss of Akron, showed today.

Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, said that it increases to 50 the number of cases found in the county since Jan. 1.

He said that of the 54 suspects and patients examined at the clinic, 33, or more than 50 per cent, were still afflicted with the ailment. The other 21 showed a negative test.

EUROPE'S MAP REVISED AGAIN BY CONFEREES

850,000 Czech Inhabitants Transferred Under German, Italian Domination.

(By United Press)

VIENNA—The Vienna conference adjourned harmoniously today after a 75-minute session which revised the map of central Europe for the third time this autumn by granting Hungary 4,635 square miles of territory and 850,000 inhabitants of Czechoslovakia.

The conferees—under the domination of Germany and Italy—had ended for the moment the Czechoslovak minority problem which a few weeks ago threatened to plunge all of Europe into war.

Hungary got most of the Czechoslovak territory that she had demanded—a solid strip along the full length of her northern border, and although the delegates from all four nations—Germany, Italy, Hungary and Czechoslovakia—were leaving here with shows of cordiality and mutual reliance, reports from Prague and Budapest indicated that the treaty they had signed was being widely denounced by Czechoslovak and Hungarian citizens.

Held 'Severe Blow.'

Czech government spokesmen described the treaty as "a severe blow." Hungarians demonstrated in Budapest shouting: "We want Bratislava back; we want everything; we want a common frontier with Poland."

Only two of Hungary's demands were rejected. Czechoslovakia was allowed to retain Bratislava, capital of Slovakia province and one of the most important cities in the country. Czechoslovakia also was allowed to retain the northern part of Ruthenia province.

Hungary got the capital, Uzhorod, and all other important cities, but Czechoslovakia was left with the desolate, mountainous northern part. This Czech fragment will be economically dependent on the area that Hungary took, and it will be isolated from the rest of the country as the only railroad connecting it with the rest of the country to the west is in the area ceded to Hungary.

Nevertheless, Czechoslovakia is left with a corridor between Hungary and Poland, which both those countries had insisted should go to Hungary, so they could fortify it on a north-south line against Russia.

The 75-minute session, ruled by Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign ministers of Germany and Italy, revised the treaty of Trianon, which Georges Clemenceau, David Lloyd George and Woodrow Wilson had spent months to write.

Shortly after 7:30 p. m. the delegations from the two smaller nations arrived and signed the treaty without question.

Dynamite Used Up, Miners Dig With Picks To Find Dog

CLARKSBURG, W. Va.—(U.P.)—Digging for Sport, the brown and white beagle hound that has been trapped in a sink hole in Spelter mountain for 15 days, was continued with pick and shovel today.

When their supply of dynamite was exhausted, rescue workers returned to hand tools to tear away rock and earth that hold the pet of Spelter mining community captive.

Men expert at swinging picks because of their experience in coal mines worked all night at the slow, laborious task of ripping away tons of rock. They were told that a mining company would donate more dynamite today to speed progress toward the little dog.

"We hope to reach Sport in about two or three days, if everything goes right," one of the rescue workers said.

Lynchy Garcia, Edward Conner and Tom Isabella, members of the untiring rescue crew, said today they were certain that Sport will be found alive.

New Court Fight on Dayton Schools Looms

Up and Down THE STREET

Another one of those classified ads in The News-Journal yesterday about the "pure bred milking shorthorn bulls" caused titters over the town. But they appear frequently and are strictly correct—and ask any livestock expert. There are shorthorns and shorthorns it seems, and some are "milking shorthorns" and others, "beef shorthorns." There are bulls for each breed and the only way to properly designate the one is as a "milking shorthorn" bull. And this explanation should last for another year.

It can well be said that State Highway Patrolman L. D. Alexander of the Mansfield substation "gets his man"—even if he's only wanted in municipal court to testify as a witness. Armed with a subpoena, Alexander climbed to the top of the new Woodland water tower yesterday to serve the summons when he found that his man was on the job but couldn't be called down. And if you don't think that water tower is up in the air—just try climbing up there yourself.

After 16 years of singing the same song at assembly programs, senior high school students are going to have a change. A. LeMoine Derr, supervisor of vocal music in the city schools, has written two new songs—doing both the words and lyrics himself. They'll be introduced for the first time tomorrow afternoon, and the titles will be kept secret until that time. The old song, "Loyalty", won't be discarded, but there'll be more variety from now on.

Carl Russell uses the philosophy of counting his chickens before they are hatched. He has already invited a group of friends to a rabbit dinner. Last night at a meeting of the directors of the Retail Merchants' association, Russell told the group to come to his home for a hausenpheffer dinner. The arrangement is that Joy A. Herbert and Russell will bring home the rabbits and Louis A. Ott will prepare and cook the German dish. Directors agreed to attend the dinner—but some of them suggested taking ham sandwiches in case the rabbits elude the hunters.

GETS LIFE IN MARINO MURDER

Cleveland 'Bookie' Sentenced as Jury Finds Him Guilty in Youngstown Slaying.

(By Associated Press)

YOUNGSTOWN — Thomas Galati, Cleveland horse race "bookie" was under a life sentence in Ohio penitentiary today after a jury of seven women and five men convicted him of first degree murder in the 1937 slaying of Roy (Happy) Marino, Youngtown police figure.

The jurors reached their verdict, carrying a recommendation for mercy, after deliberating 22 hours. Common Pleas Judge David G. Jenkins pronounced sentence immediately.

Galati, visibly affected by the verdict, was the fourth of five men indicted in the gangland style slaying to be convicted. The other three, all sentenced to life terms, were Solly Hart and Herbert Ross of Cleveland and John Anthoulis, Steubenville slot machine "king."

Johnny O'Boyle of Cleveland, the fifth of the accused killers, has not been apprehended.

Prosecutor William A. Ambrose contended that Marino, described by police as a gambler, was "taken for a ride" because he had interfered with Anthoulis' slot machine operations. Leaving a woman companion in his parked automobile, Marino entered a Youngstown cafe the night of Sept. 7 last year. His bullet-pierced body was found the next day in a field south of the city.

State witnesses related that the car in which Marino took his last "ride" bore license plates issued to Galati.

FORMER GROCER DIES IN NORWALK

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Friday in Norwalk for Herman Leidheiser, former Mansfield grocer, who died Tuesday night in Norwalk at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ray McCreary. Services will be conducted at the McCreary home and at 2:30 p. m. at the Vermilion cemetery where burial will be made.

Born in Germany, Mr. Leidheiser came to Mansfield from Vermilion. He made his home in Mansfield with Mr. and Mrs. McCreary, and left here two months ago when they moved to Norwalk. He operated a grocery store at 224 Glessner avenue for six years, retiring two years ago.

Surviving besides Mrs. McCreary is another daughter in Mansfield.

CORN HUSKING CHAMPS VIE IN MUD FOR NATIONAL TITLE TODAY

(By Associated Press)

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.—In the slippery mud of a South Dakota corn field, 21 farmers from 11 states, were on edge to battle today for a silver trophy, $100 and the honor of being enrolled in Agriculture's Hall of Fame as the 1938 national corn husking champion.

The competing huskers from corn belt states had little hope of breaking the national record of 41.52 bushels in the allotted 80 minutes, because of rain which made footing uncertain and dampened the ripe corn in the husky.

Former champions said it was unlikely the winner would be credited with as much as 25 bushels due to the "tough corn" and the fact that the corn was "light weight." They said the field would not average more than 60 bushels to the acre, and that the husks were thick and tough.

Ray Hanson, of Bingham Lake, Minn., the 1937 champion, was rated a good chance to repeat. Minnesota fans asserted, however, he would have to beat Ted Balko, a former champion, who nosed out Hanson in the Gopher state contest.

The contest was held on the J. N. Jensen farm 22 miles north of here and preparations were made to handle a crowd of more than 100,000 persons. The contest was to get under way at 11:45 a. m.

C. E. HUBER DIES

Veteran Ohio Brass Employe Was Native of Mansfield.

Clarence E. Huber, 53, of 256 West Fifth street, died in General hospital Wednesday after an illness of several weeks. Born Mar. 18, 1885, Mr. Huber was a lifelong resident of Mansfield and was employed by the Ohio Brass company for 30 years. He was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran church.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Harry B. Earl of Shelby, and Margaret at home; a sister, Mrs. Walter V. Smith of Mansfield, and two grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday with Rev. J. Louis Wolf of St. Mark's Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

RETIRED FARMER TAKEN BY DEATH

William Lepp, 71, Dies at Home Near Mt. Gilead.

MT. GILEAD — William Lepp, 71, died at his home in Canaan township Wednesday after an illness of two years. A retired farmer, Mr. Lepp was born in Martel, Nov. 15, 1856. He was a member of the Clyde Reformed church.

Surviving are his wife, Mina; two sons, Harley and Forest of Edison; three brothers, John, Henry and George of Edison; a sister, Mrs. Maggie Long of Galion and three grandchildren.

Services will be held at the Craven funeral home at 2 p. m. Saturday with Rev. W T. McWilliams officiating. Burial will be in the Rivercliffe cemetery.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

OPERATIONS BY COUNTY MONEY ASKED IN SUIT

Proposal Submitted After Teachers Vote Down Plan to Work Without Pay.

(By International News Service)

DAYTON—A new plan to open Dayton schools was considered today after teachers voted 1,010 to three against working without some assurance of pay.

Richard L. Withrow, board of education member, who dissented from the action which closed the schools, and attorneys for the Kiser High School Booster club, filed an application asking that probate court take over the schools and operate them with money to be borrowed from the county operating fund.

Probate Judge William C. Wiseman tentatively set Saturday as a hearing day for the applications.

Observers pointed out that the law under which the applications were filed has been little used and serious opposition was expected, including an attack on its constitutionality.

"There is not enough money in the county operating fund to do it," declared County Commissioner Samuel G. Carr. His opinion was substantiated by County Prosecutor Nicholas F. Nolan.

Hearing Scheduled.

Meanwhile, common pleas court action filed by Withrow, in which he asked that the board of education's action in closing the schools because of a financial shortage be overruled, was scheduled for hearing at 2 p. m. today.

Both Withrow and Common Pleas Judge Null M. Hodapp protested strongly because opponents of action which closed the schools were not permitted to address the teachers before they voted not to work unless there was some assurance of pay.

Hodapp said there was a "whispering campaign" carried on before the meeting to line the teachers up with the board.

"It looks like the board is on a lockout and school teachers are on at sitdown," Withrow commented.

Resolutions were adopted by the teachers which supported the board's action and criticized the city for voting down a school levy every year for the last six years.

"Teachers should not teach without pay when the public has ability to provide sufficient funds for school support and fails to do so," one of the resolutions read.

FATALLY HURT

Fredericktown Girl, 15, Injured in Auto Accident, Dies.

FREDERICKTOWN—Miss Rose Coreta McCoy, 15-year-old Fredericktown high school sophomore, died in the Mt. Vernon hospital Wednesday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident Monday night. Miss McCoy was hurt about the head when the car in which she was returning from Mt. Vernon turned over on a sharp curve. Other occupants of the car suffered only minor injuries.

Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCoy; three brothers, Robert and Durard of Fredericktown and Frederick of Mt. Vernon, and five sisters, Mrs. Fairy Rust and Mrs. Fern Brown of Fredericktown, Mrs. Hazel Rust and Madeline of Mt. Vernon and Mrs. Carmen Robinson of Greenwich.

Funeral services will be held at the Methodist church at 2 p. m. Friday with Rev. L. A. Ensley and Rev. A R. Woodward officiating. Burial will be in the Bellville cemetery.

POSSE CAPTURES BANDITS' KIN

Relatives of Barrow Brothers Face Armed Robbery Charge.

SAN ANGELO, Tex.—(U.P.)—Two men and a woman, captured by a west Texas posse and charged with armed robbery, were identified today as relatives or followers of the old Hamilton and Barrow brothers' gang—the worst of the southwest's modern outlaws.

The prisoners were Joe Carson, 24, brother-in-law of the late Raymond Hamilton; Ollie Miner Smith, a police character and once a follower of the Hamilton-Barrow gang, and a 21-year-old woman believed to Marie Barrow Francis, sister of the late Clyde and Buck Barrow.

GALION MAN DIES AT 55

GALION—Homer L. Pensinger, 55, a lifelong resident of Galion, died at his home here yesterday after an illness of a year. Surviving are his wife, Elizabeth, and a daughter, Frances at home. He was a member of the St. Joseph's Catholic church and Eagles and C. K. O. lodges. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Merely An Idea, Not a Recommendation, But It Has Worked Some Times

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—In these days when condition often makes the difference between victory and defeat in the final quarter of a big football game I sometimes recall a rebuff by Fielding H. Yost, that stout abstainer and prohibitionist who has walked these many years up to his eyes in incoherent old-grads and never gnawed a dram.

One afternoon Mr. Yost stood on the football field at Princeton watching a rather indifferent Michigan team go through the figures of the morrow's work against the Tiger and remarked that they lacked the old pepper.

Rather brightly I suggested that some fighters when they went stale, including James J. Corbett—surely the most intelligent of them all—broke training with a crash, preferably on champagne, and when the swelling had abated came back better than ever.

"Now, if, instead of that water bucket, you were to send a half-dozen champagne coolers on the field along in the third quarter," I proposed, "you would see a surprising revival of spirits, or that which you call the old pepper."

Mr. Yost turned a cold glare on the author of this heretical idea and walked away from an evil presence muttering, "Champagne wine! Champagne wine! I have never had a drunkard on a team of mine and never will."

* * *

Well, it was just an idea, tossed off as casually as that, but from knowledge, nevertheless, that before prohibition some football trainers brought their men along on ale and that in the ring some gladiators were known to take a small knock at a bottle of brandy between rounds when their knees began to flutter, and came back raging.

And even during prohibition one of the most painful social errors of the very elaborate social side of football nearly destroyed a fine old friendship between the business manager and the press agent of a famous team when the business manager phoned the social headquarters late in the evening and asked how things were going. It was common practice to buy several of those burlap hams of rye from some reliable bootlegger, set it out on the tables in several connecting rooms of the social headquarters in a big hotel and revive college memories far into the night.

About 10 o'clock this night the business manager phoned and asked if the merrymaking was proceeding without undue bloodshed, and the publicity manager gaily replied. "Oh, yes, sir; yes, sir, indeed, sir; indeed, to be sure, yes, and the wine was wunnerful."

"What wine?"

"Why, the champagne wine," said the publicity man. "Everybody had some as long as it lasted, and it was certainly mighty fine, sir."

"That wine," the business manager said bitterly, "was for the team."

* * *

So, from piecing together bits of random information, I long ago arrived at the belief that Mr. Yost's fierce contempt for a mere mention of an idea then believed to be unique was not entirely just. He may have had no drunkards on any team of his, but other coaches had not been above recruiting, as a ringer to help them through in grave emergencies, the giant who lives in the bottle.

There may be others who can match the experience of some who played for Washington and Lee against Virginia Polytechnic Institute about 1915 or 1916, a game which dragged through two listless quarters on a stifling autumn day and came brilliantly to life in the second half when Washington and Lee left the locker room stepping high and handsome and singing as they went.

A sodden, lifeless football team began throwing passes which floated like bubbles and danced on the fingers of receivers who seemed to delight in juggling the ball ere plucking it down. There were shocking violations of all the standard formulas, play so unorthodox that the enemy, through their own training in football routine, could not believe what they saw, and Washington and Lee won by a couple of touchdowns from a water-cooled squad whose coach had lacked vision or provision, or both.

* * *

My informant, who saw Fordham lose to Pitt last week, said Fordham apparently was just played out in the latter part of the game.

"So were we and so was V. P. I. that day," he added, "but between halves certain persons unknown distributed several bottles of an unknown liquid which bubbled and whispered mischievously as our brave lads held the bottle necks to their innocent lips. I know we won, but I forgot the exact score. As a matter of fact, I was blind."

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The message was urgent, vital, compelling. Only two more days to see a sight never to be forgotten. Two short days. Hurry, hurry! Carole Lombard was in the throes of drama.

The harum-scarum comedy blond, the girl who can take it, rah-rah Lombard! This girl was flinging her challenge in the general direction of serious stuff! Look out, Bernhardt! Step lively, Duse! Duck, Garbo!

On two wheels we skidded out to Culver City.

Off in a back section of the lot, where the publicity department is housed in a bungalow next to Miss Lombard's bungalow, there was no hint either of Great Moments. Over the publicity department a sign proclaimed: "This Is Not Miss Lombard's Bungalow." Over Miss Lombard's bungalow, a sign proclaimed: "This Is Not the Publicity Department."

* * *

Undeceived, however, by such levity — even Bernhardt had her lighter moments — we reverently approached the sound stage where "Made for Each Other" was in progress. Hat in hand, breathless, on tiptoe.

We were scarcely inside the door when we heard it. That laugh! There's nothing else quite like it. It caroms up to the rafters, bounces back, and does the shag with all its echoes. It says, but not so tritely, "Ain't we got fun?" It says, too, "Nuts!" It says, too, "Scram, all you stuffed shirts—this is Lombard!"

Ah, there she was! Sitting in a canvas chair off behind the camera, waiting for John Cromwell to start directing.

* * *

Carole said "Hi" and wanted a cigaret. She didn't look wan. She didn't look pale. She didn't look tragic. And she didn't know a thing. All she knew was she was so damned tired she couldn't see. She'd been at it all day. At what? We'd see in a minute.

"Miss Lombard, please," they called. Ah, here it was, at last!

We stopped breathing again. Some day this moment might fit into our memoirs: "Ah, well do I remember that late afternoon on Stage 14," etc.

Miss Lombard knelt on the floor before the camera. The lights went on and the assistant called, "Quiet, everybody, they're rolling!"

The baby was produced. Cute little tyke, aged one year, three weeks. Dressed in a cute little suit with a too-big hat. Miss Lombard cuddled him, the camera turned, the air was tense. The baby, it developed, was supposed to give Miss Lombard the "bird."

The baby's name was Jackie. We couldn't identify the gentleman standing on his head, making faces. It wasn't Mr. Cromwell. He was merely making faces.

But Jackie plainly didn't wanna. Jackie still didn't wanna, no matter what. He looked around with a what-the-hell expression. He finally got so bored he cried. Loud. Wa-ah-aaa! Mr. Cromwell thought they'd better try tomorrow . . .

REPORTS ON BOOK AT LITTLE FLOWER MEET

Mrs. Joseph E Kuebler Presents Review of "The Crisis of Civilization" at Home of Mrs. M. A. Downs Last Night.

THE present crisis is the most severe that has ever afflicted civilization, Hilaire Belloc says in his book, "The Crisis of Civilization," which was reviewed by Mrs. Joseph E. Kuebler last night at a meeting of the Little Flower Study club at the home of Mrs M. A. Downs, Chevy Chase road.

He contends the crisis has been brought about chiefly by a breakdown of the moral forces and accepted standards which were the main props of our civilization during the best period between 1200 and 1300, Mrs Kuebler pointed out.

In the book Belloc traces the development of Christian civilization from its origin up to the present time with the latter part dealing with suggested remedies

"There are two solutions to the critical situation into which our society has fallen,' Belloc says "One is communism and the other is the restoration of property to the dispossessed proletariat

"Communism is not acceptable for it is mainly an extension and aggravation of the evils from which we are now suffering The alternative is a return to the Christian order of things and a restoration of private property."

In Belloc's mind, Mrs. Kuebler said, the Christian program should be based on a better distribution of property, public control of monopolies, and the reestablishment of those principles and that organization which underlie the conception of the guild

"The application of these remedies, however, is predicated on the return of society to the philosophy of Christianity, for it is only in Christian society that these economic conditions can be maintained," the author says.

At the close of the meeting a buffet lunch was served. A bowl of yellow pompons was the centerpiece.

A sealed program and guest party has been arranged for the club's next meeting which will be held Monday, Nov. 14, at the home of Mrs. F. B. Mahoney, Sherman place.

Mrs. Arthur Glattke, Mrs. John Bissman and Mrs. E. H. Schaub were appointed to the committee for the Christmas party to be given by the Student club Dec. 14 last night when members were entertained by Mrs. George Ingram, 22 West Augustine avenue. No program was given. Miss Lucille Kearns assisted by Mrs. L. L. Wenger will entertain at the Kearns home, 787 Woodhill road, Nov. 16.

Former Resident Tells Engagement

Announcement was made in Newton, Mass., several days ago, of the engagement of a former Mansfield man and a Newton girl

The betrothal was announced by Mr. and Mrs. M. Lester Madden, whose daughter, Miss Grace E. Madden will marry Stevenson E. Ward, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs Stevenson Ward of Bronxville, N. Y., also former Mansfielders. The younger Ward is a nephew of Mrs. Paul E. Sturges, Overlook road, and of Miss Edna Ward and M. Dale Ward, Park avenue west.

Mr. Ward graduated from Yale university in 1934, is a member of the Yale club of New York City, the Siwanoy Country club and the Manursing Island Club of Rye. N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mellick and children, Belmont avenue, and Mrs. Howard Sowash and daughter, Ruth, Lexington, visited relatives at Stryker recently.

SOCIALIZED MEDICINE SUBJECT OF PAPERS

Mrs. F. E. Ross, Mrs. Paul Endriss Present Both Sides of Discussion at Conversational Club Meeting.

TAKING the pro and con sides of the subject, "Socialized Medicine," Mrs. F. E. Ross and Mrs. Paul Endriss spoke yesterday at the meeting of the Conversational club which was held at the home of Mrs. Eugene Smart, Sherman avenue. There were 20 members and two guests, Mrs P. B. Dietrichson and Mrs. B. M. Hathaway, present.

Mrs. Ross told of the advantages to the state, to the physician and to the patient which would be had with socialized medicine. In her paper she offered the reasons for needing such a system, and emphasized the high cost of private care, the frequent unnecessary illnesses, the high infant mortality in the low income groups, and the areas of this country which are without adequate medical attention.

This country has persons with better health than any other civilized nation, Mrs. Endriss told her listeners. It has the lowest infant death rate, and the lowest rate of death from infectious disease in the world. There are more and better doctors here than in any other country and they willingly co-operate to improve the system from time to time. The biggest argument against socialized medicine, according to Mrs. Endriss, was the evidence that in other countries, where it has been tried, it has not solved the problems now present in our modern system.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting with Mrs. Lee Twitchell pouring. The table was set with a red and white cloth and a bowl of red and white chrysanthemums. Mrs. W. E. Wygant, 63 Hoffman avenue, will be hostess for the program to be given by the high school students Nov. 16.

Espionage Topic Of Paper Offered

"Espionage" was the title of the paper presented by Mrs. John Hattery yesterday at the meeting of the Wednesday Study club which was held at the home of Mrs. Alan Tappan, Woodland road. She told of the German system used in the United States from the beginning of the World war until the time this country entered the conflict. The speaker pointed out the astounding methods used by the highly organized employes of the German government.

Mrs. C. L. Reely, former Mansfielder now living in Cleveland, and an honorary member of the club, was a guest. Tea was served at the close of the meeting with Mrs. George Draffan pouring. The next meeting will be Nov. 16, but the hostess was not announced.

Objects To Three-Year Engagement

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For the past three years I've been engaged, although I really don't believe in long engagements. But it just has been impossible for us to marry as my fiance has been out of work off and on for almost a year. I have a stenographic position, but it doesn't pay enough for two.

He lives in another city, while I am at home, and he cannot come to see me very often as he hasn't a car. He used to take me out a lot when he had regular work, but now I'm so tired of waiting. My parents are trying to persuade me to break my engagement. But I don't like to do it, when I think of how good he was to me when he had money.

Do you advise breaking with him, as these long engagements are so wearing? Or had I better wait until things get better and we can marry? He is ideally perfect in every way.

WATCHFUL WAITING.

Waiting would not be so hard on you, if you really loved this young man enough to marry him. There are many girls in your same predicament. But if young folks love each other devotedly, waiting does not seem so hard, which, after all, is the supreme test. Talk it over with the young man, and have some sort of arrangement which would leave you both free to go out with other girls and boys in the meantime.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Nov. 4.

According to the lunar transits, this is to be a day of outstanding liveliness, activity and merriment in the business and private affiliations. Things will move at an exhilarating pace in all directions, with social, romantic and domestic functions claiming much attention and giving joy. It is an auspicious time for the young, the romantic and the pleasure loving. At the same there, there are portents of intrigues and illicit or sinister matters that might give anxiety or cause deep regret. Be vigilant and discreet.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of great activity and gratification in the business and private lives. There will be very merry and joyous doings in connection with social, romantic, domestic and artistic functions, with youth and romance having their fling. But dangers also are indicated, so be alert.

A child born on this day may be particularly stimulated and high-keyed in its intellectual as well as emotional and spiritual qualities, but it may have an undercurrent of the subtle, elusive, probably imaginative, eccentric and reactionary. Its fine qualities should be given direction in its early life.

No ferns, aspidistras, etc., should be watered from the top of the pot. Place the plants in a vessel containing rain-water, if possible, and if this is not obtainable the water used should just have the chill off. When they have absorbed all the moisture they require put them back in clean, dry receptacles, but on no account allow them to stand for days in the water.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

EVEN IF Miss Whitlock had known the name of the woman at the other end of the telephone, she could have told me nothing which would have aided me in identifying her.

For I never had heard the name of the mysterious occupant of the table at the cafe, whose voice I had heard twice over the telephone.

"This is Mrs. Graham."

I was conscious that both Mary and Miss Whitlock, while not appearing to notice the conversation, were keenly interested, and the knowledge did not make it easier for me to keep my composure, as for the fourth time I heard the voice of the woman who was playing so mysterious and menacing a role in Dicky's life.

"Oh! Mrs. Graham," it was saying. "Do pardon me for intruding, but can you possibly tell me where I can get in touch with Mr. Graham?"

I did not bother to make my own voice other than icily courteous when I answered.

"By Mr. Graham's request, I never answer a question of that sort unless I know the person calling," I said. "I trust you will excuse me."

"Oh! but you do know me over the telephone," she said quickly, and I could feel her voice losing a bit of its content of sugar. "Don't you remember—I answered you from the office when you were inquiring about Mr. Graham?"

"Oh! yes," I said, purposely lessening the frigidity of my voice, "You are Mr. Graham's secretary?"

"Well!" The voice held amusement now as well as more than a touch of its former insolence. "You might call it that. One word's as good as another. But there's no mistake about my having to get in touch with him right away. Something frightfully important has come up here, and he will have to decide upon it. Is the hotel operator correct when she says he went out about half an hour ago?"

"Yes, that is right." I was struggling for composure now, feeling as if I were fighting for breath.

"Then will you please tell me where he has gone, so that I may telephone him at once?"

I had a sudden, quick vision of this woman telephoning the office of the great specialist and staging a sordid monologue over the wires with fastidious Dicky at the receiving end.

"I cannot do that," I said, scorning to tell her the falsehood that I did not know.

"Cannot or will not?" she snapped, the bonds of her self-control weakening.

"Interpret it as you wish," I said indifferently.

"Look here, you!" she said raucously, the last remnants of her self-control gone. "This is a matter of life or death almost. Your husband will be a sorry person, and you will be sorrier still if he doesn't know about this thing within the next 15 minutes. Now, are you going to give me that telephone number, or aren't you?"

"I will do this, and nothing else," I returned imperturbably. "Listen carefully, please. I will try immediately to locate Mr. Graham and give him your message. Then if he wishes to call you back, he will. That is all I can do. But I must request you not to call me again today. I am very busy and I shall request the operator not to connect anyone with this suite who is not on our special list."

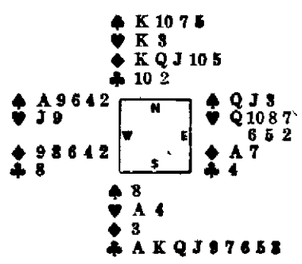
"The Authority on Authorities"

LET A BUZZ SAW ALONE

A PRE-EMPTIVE GAME bid, such as four spades or five clubs, is like a buzz saw — usually a bad thing to monkey with. Unless you hold a couple of aces and a king or void in the three off-suits, you seldom can hope soundly for a slam. Remember that your partner is purposely over-bidding for defensive purposes because his hand is weak generally, and he needs a good bit of help from you to make the amount of his bid.



(Dealer. East. Both sides vulnerable).

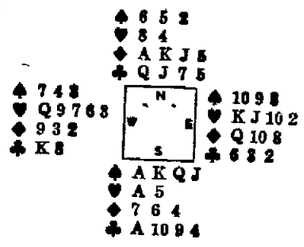
East passed on this deal and South pre-empted with 5-Clubs. North bid 5-Diamonds, which South took out to 6-Clubs.

West laid down the spade A with the hope of holding the trick and getting a look at the dummy. Seeing five diamonds there and five in his own hand, he fervently hoped his partner might bevoid and an extra trick could be found there. Instead he was agreeably surprised to discover that East held the A. East came back with a heart but declarer was able to claim the remainder of the tricks. Any other return by West at the second trick would have made its possible for South to score his slam.

North had no just excuse for touching South's original bid. His contention was that he had a very fine hand but failed to remember that by urging South to the slam that only one trick could be lost and his hand offered no first round tricks.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable).

Ferns need proper attention and management just as much as other household matters. Water your plants regularly and well, but never allow them to stand in a pot containing stagnant water.

In making cereal gruels, jellies or cream soups for invalids, careful blending, long cooking, and straining are essential. In making meat broths, slow simmering and careful skimming of all grease before serving should be observed.

How About Beauty Of Personality?

By MME. QUI VIVE.

It occurs now and then to this preacher of pulchritude that the members of the beauty class might take time off from external surveys and think about what they say, how they behave.

Curtness, criticism, snobbishness, the domineering attitude—what do they get one? If one is to look nice, one must be nice. Beauty starts in the heart and the mind and, though one has plain features, spiritual loveliness will cast a radiance. It seems silly for a girl to spend time and money on dress and cosmetics if she ruins the results by being brittle, sharp-tongued, ill-mannered.

* * *

Success in business and social affairs is often won by the forces of kindliness, thoughtfulness, the friendly attitude. In every large office there are the peaches and the lemons.

One glance and girls can be classified. Bitterness of feeling may be expressed in the sharp glance of an eye, a quick jerky step, a movement of the hand. Steer clear of that one! You and I know individuals we try to avoid, others that we're happy to meet, that pass on to us something of their own charm and graciousness.

* * *

Some people seem born with a talent for getting along with their fellow creatures. One baby will reach out his arm, embrace a little comrade. The next will haul off and sock him. Grown-ups act pretty much the same way.

Even with the handicap of an aloof nature and no special home training a girl can develop amiability and friendliness. It is a matter of mental training. Popular girls act naturally. They don't pose. If they have a sense of humor, love to laugh, so much the better. They charge the atmosphere with gaiety, put other people at ease. That's why they're popular. And they'll never find a shining nose or freckles or sparse hair any handicap. The beauty of spirit blots out external defects, or at least makes others forget them.

Notes From a Model's Diary

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

One of the biggest productions of the season, one that opened with all sorts of fanfare, isn't doing so well and it looks as though the notice will soon go up. Consuelo's manager has had his eye on that house and today he made arrangements to take it over, if the present show doesn't last beyond two weeks. Of course, that won't interfere with our little jaunt to Bermuda for we'll be back before then.

Last night Consuelo stayed home and we made up a list of what we will take with us. I'm wearing my beige tweed three-piece suit since the top-coat will do over a sports dress. It has tuxedo revers of lynx and is ever so smart. Consuelo also is wearing her suit, which is in oatmeal-colored woolen with a collar and wide tuxedo stoles of snowy leopard. I'm also taking my black evening sheath and my white one, which, together with my midnight blue sequin jacket, my white and silver sequin jacket and my shaded pink silk fringe bolero, will give ample changes for evening. I'm packing a couple of silk sports frocks and a knitted silk two-piece suit, but that's all, except for a couple pairs of shoes, a little evening hat and a beige silk beret for afternoon wear. Of course, we are taking bathing suits for the hotel pool.

Looking Forward.

I don't know when I've looked forward to a little trip like this. I am glad that Consuelo is going to get a tiny rest before her show does open. I have never seen her so worried. She is frightfully superstitious and takes the fire as a bad omen. I'm sure that if she did not know that leaving the show would entail a frightful loss to the producer, she would try to break her contract right away.

But she is far too good a trouper and good sport to let her personal feelings triumph, so I'm sure she will see the show through.

This certainly is a reason for pockets. Don't know when I've ever seen so many clothes with pockets; they're such novel ones, too. The pocket is one item that can be as decorative as it is useful, as can be seen from this model. It is a grand suit of tweeds, the jacket of mustard tweed, the skirt in brown and yellow tweed. There are four circular patches around the split pocket, vertical at the breast, horizontal at the hips, with leather link button fastenings.

Lending Toys To Needy Children Recent Venture

Most children have far too many toys. They cannot possibly play with the many which are bestowed upon them by doting relatives and friends.

But there also are thousands of children who have no toys at all. For such Mrs. Ida Cash, a probation officer of Children's court of Greater New York, suggested the establishment of a free lending library of toys, for she found that youngsters got into trouble for stealing the toys for which their hearts yearned but which were denied them.

It required a year's time and the help of many interested persons to open the first "Toyery, Inc.," and New York City now boasts of four toyeries, five years after the first one was organized.

Movement National.

The movement now has become a national project, and toyeries patterned after those in New York are functioning in Dallas, Tex., Phoenix, Ariz., Chicago, Ill., Los Angeles, Cal., and several other cities, including Kansas City, Mo. The latter's toyery was opened in June, 1937. Over 200 children have taken advantage of this opportunity, and each Saturday morning there is a steady stream of youngsters exchanging toys. Miss Martha Taylor is president of the group which collects the toys from children of the well-to-do, and sees to it that they are cleaned, mended and put into condition for the enjoyment of toy-starved youngsters.

Donations of toys are solicited, and sponsors of the movement declare that while there is naturally need for replacements, as the toys endure a great deal of usage, the percentage of breakage is surprisingly small, and anyone who has seen the delight of children turned loose in toyland for the first time is not surprised that the youngsters cherish their borrowed treasures almost to the point of reverence.

Better results will be obtained from cookies which require rolling if the dough is chilled for several hours. (Even chilling them overnight is not too long). A thorough chilling enables the dough to be handled more easily.

To bring out the full flavor of raisins, dates, currants or figs soak them in a little boiling water for five minutes. Two tablespoons of boiling water for each half cup of fruit will be satisfactory.

Wife Preservers

If you serve brick ice cream on a glass or china plate, you will find it does not melt so quickly if a wafer or cookie is put on the plate first. The cookie acts as insulation
